No mass exodus expected

'Want-to' Americans flee Beirut as fighting halts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Some Americans were expected to leave Beirut Saturday with a British convoy counselor, Robert O. Waring, and their for Damascus, but no mass exodus of the 1,400 U.S. citizens still in the Lebanese capital was anticipated.

American Embassy today to organize convoys to evacuate any Americans wanting to leave following the slaying

A mass exodus of Americans was not President Ford ordered the expected because fighting in Beirut has subsided, and the population is feeling more secure. There is talk of the airport reopening, which would give a

Over 'acts of tyranny'

City Council objects to paid advertisement

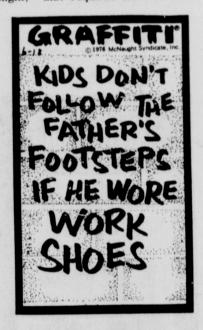

Washington C.H. City Council cessive," and that the defendants were members have issued a joint statement denying allegations of "acts of tyranny" which appeared recently in a paid advertisement in the Record-Herald signed by Sam B. Marting, president of the Marting Manufacturing Co., 809 Delaware St.

Released shortly after 11 a.m. Friday, the statement was signed by six of the seven City Council members. Council member Billie Wilson, who has repeatedly opposed income tax measures (the focal point of the "tyranny,") was asked to sign but reportedly refused.

Council chairman Joseph O'Brien delivered the document to City Manager George H. Shapter Friday

The city manager said there has been a constant flow of half-truths and false statements from City Council critics, and the public needs to be made aware of the facts pertaining to these inaccuracies

Marting's letter said that repeated passage of city income tax ordinances was an example of "taxation without representation," that persons arrested for alleged violations of law were taken from their homes "in the dead of the night," that required bail was "ex-

being "denied a jury of their peers."

The statement issued by City Council responded to each accusation individually 'We, the members of City Council, are the duly elected representatives of this city. We are charged by our office to see that the City is run in an orderly and efficient manner for the benefit of all residents. This we are attempting to do," the six Council members said.

Council further stated that those who circulated petitions for repeal of the tax were not treated as traitors as Marting alleged but only as persons "who have made sworn statements which are, in fact, false.'

In response to claims that the arrests were made in "the dead of night," Council members stated that police records show the five arrests occurred between 2:30 and 6 p.m.

In each of the cases, bond was established at $500.

During discussions prior to issuing the statement, O'Brien reportedly said that when he was accused of assault after a public hearing, his bond was placed at $1,000. He posted a 10 per cent cash bond, or $100.

Four of the five defendants obtained bondsmen, and the court received no cash, the statement adds

The decision to have the trial moved to Circleville was not made by Council, but by Acting Judge John P. Case. "We are the legislative branch of the government-not the judicial-and as such, do not interfere in judicial affairs," the Council members said.

Mr. Marting has contempt for th due process of law, let him direct his contempt elsewhere, than at Council," they stated.

'Mr. Marting further suggest (sic) a 'revolution—not of guns but one to rid us of tyranny.' We suggest that the citizens of this city have suffered long enough by false statements made by an irresponsible group seeking to serve their own interests at the expense of the resident taxpayers of this community.

'We, therefore, issue this statement and vow that in each and every instance whereby false or misleading information is disseminated in an 'anti-city government' effort, we shall respond with the truth as verified by the records," the statement concluded.

safer exit route if evacuation became necessary. And many of the Americans for months have resisted the Embassy's urging that they leave, because they are of Lebanese birth, have dual citizenship and don't want to leave their native land.

The State Department announced early today that "due to the continuing uncertainty of the situation in Beirut, the President has directed the U.S. Embassy there to organize a departure of an overland convoy of those U.S. citizens who wish to depart at this

A State Department spokesman said the U.S. Embassy would remain open and "only those Embassy officials not essential to our continuing operations' would leave. The Embassy staff has already been cut to 53 Americans.

The word from Washington was received at the Beirut Embassy as its staff was busy arranging to send the bodies of Meloy and Waring to Damascus to be flown from there to Washington. Embassy officials could give no information about their plans for American evacuees, and it was obvious that the first available transportation out for anyone wanting to go would be the convoy of about 50 buses the British Embassy was organizing for Saturday

A British official said about 600 Britons were expected to take the convoy. This would leave places for about 1,100 other foreigners. The buses will be escorted from Beirut to Sidon, 25 miles south of the capital, by Palestinian troops. Syrian troops will

Paul Warfield parade grand marshal

B'burg bicentennial festival set

BLOOMINGBURG-Paul Warfield, one of the premier wide receivers in the National Football League, will serve as grand marshal of Bloomingburg's bicentennial parade.

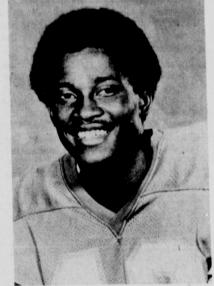

The parade, which is one of the highlights of an all-day festival in the village, will be held beginning at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 3.

The speedy and graceful Warfield signed a contract with Cleveland in April and will rejoin the Browns following a five-year absence for the 1976 season. He started his professional football career with the Browns in 1964.

Warfield played the first six of his 11 years in the National Football League in a Cleveland uniform and was an outstanding performer. He caught 52 passes as a rookie and his 1,067 yards in 1968 still constitutes a Cleveland record.

In early 1970, Warfield was traded to Miami for the Dolphins' top draft choice, a trade that brought quarterback Mike Phipps to Cleveland. He continued to star at Miami during five seasons where he matched his Clevveland feat of being chosen as an All-Pro three different years. He has played in the Pro Bowl game seven times in his 11-year National Football League career.

A native of Warren, Ohio, Warfield participated in football, basketball and track at Warren Harding High School and rejected several major league baseball offers to attend Ohio State University. With the Buckeyes, a team noted for its running game, Warfield gained All-American honors as a receiver, ball carrier and defensive Married and the father of a daughter and a son, Warfield has resided in the Cleveland suburb of Beachwood for the past 10 years. This winter he was a sportscaster on a Cleveland radio station and is hopeful of making this a career after football.

Following the parade, Warfield will be on hand for an autograph signing

THE PARADE will form at Bloomingburg Elementary School and

Robert Grim, chairman of the Bloomingburg bicentennial com-mission, said the all-day festival will be launched at 9:30 a.m. with a tractor pull contest.

During the day's activities, village officials will seal a time capsule full of artifacts to be opened in 100 years. Historical items will be displayed at the village town hall throughout the day, and 11 former and present Bloomingburg residents will be inducted in the village's hall of fame.

Other activities include a street carnival, a church-sponsored ice cream social, numerous concessions throughout the day sponsored by local civic groups, bingo, pie-eating and horseshoe pitching contests, a square dance demonstration and a rock and roll band performance.

The event will close with a 45-minute fireworks display at 10 p.m.

The village will be decorated with flags and banners and members of the bicentennial commission are urging Bloomingburg residents to display flags throughout the day, Grim said.

Hundreds of carp killed near Rock Bridge

Something's fishy

By GEOFF MAVIS

Record-Herald Staff Writer It was readily apparent to the eyes and nose of a passerby that something was fishy at Rock Bridge in southern Fayette County Thursday afternoon. Located along the banks and shallow waters of Paint Creek near the bridge was a large collection of dead and dying fish, which, area residents said, and other aquatic species could be seen in piles along the Paint Creek banks near the bridge and as far as a mile downstream. according to area

Other numbers of fish, some in their last gasps of life, were hovering near the surface of along the shore line.

A white, foamy, and apparently unnatural substance flowed over the bridge and fanned out across a pool Fayette County game protector

Jerry Cremeans was present at the Creek Road bridge early Friday to obtain water samples, which, he said, would determine the exact nature of the toxic substance present. Sent to a laboratory in Columbus, it may be three weeks before the contents of the samples are know, Cremeans stated. According to the game protector, the water condition along that stretch of Paint Creek could have been brought on by the recent warm days and overcast skies present in Fayette County during the past week. He said that low water levels and humid weather cause a build up in the algae population of creeks and ponds.

When skies are predominately overcast, as they have been recently, Cremeans noted that algae will die During their decomposition, they use 10 times as much oxygen as during their life sustaining processes, he said.

Compounded with the toxic subances of sewage amounts present in the water, the low oxygen level in the water is sufficient to kill much of the fish in various areas of Paint Creek, Cremeans stated. He added that in his six and a half years in Fayette County, he has seen a similar fish kill at least five times in the Rock Bridge area.

If the dead fish are the result of a low water oxygen content brought on by algae decomposition, Cremeans said that grazing livestock in pasturland bordering the creek would not be harmed by drinking the water.

Just how much toxicity is present within the water flowing through Paint Creek can only be determined with the analyzation of water samples taken, Cremeans stated.

Johannesburg remains battleground

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Rioting broke out today in at least seven more black townships and other parts of South Africa in the third day of an uprising in which at least 58 persons have been killed and 788 wounded.

Police said general calm was restored to the big Soweto township, the battleground Wednesday and Thursday, but violence erupted in other black enclaves

The South African Press Association reported that police opened fire to disperse a mob of blacks, mostly young people, at Alexandra, a shantytown just north of Johannesburg. The shooting began when rioters set fire to at least a dozen vehicles, the report said. There was no word on casualties.

About 3,000 blacks went on a rampage at Vosloorus township, about 15 miles southeast of Johannesburg, and set four buses and a beer hall ablaze. At nearby Natalspruit, rioters stoned passing cars and set fire to buses.

Two government employes were trapped inside a brewery near the outskirts of the white city of Germiston, also near Vosloorus. Police armed with automatic rifles set up roadblocks around Vosloorus, and one police officer said the mood of the crowd was

The black University of the North at Pietermaritzburg was tense this morning as students gathered on a football field watched by police.

Rioting students at the black University of Zululand on the east coast dispersed after burning down several buildings, police said. Firemen who rushed to the scene were forced back by rock-throwing students, they said.

A police official reported the situation in Soweto was "completely under control" but said there were still a few pockets of resistance by small groups of blacks. The rioting there subsided after midnight Thursday as some 1,500 police, both black and white, toured the ghetto eight miles south of Johannesburg in armored cars. Police said all but two of the dead and five of the injured were black. The South African Press Association said there were 61 dead. The police reported 208 persons arrested. They gave no racial breakdown, but presumably all or most of them were black. It was the worst black uprising in white-ruled South Africa since police gunfire killed 69 Africans protesting laws requiring them to carry passes at Sharpeville on March 21, 1960. As peace returned to Soweto, thousands of black commuters jammed buses and trains to their jobs in Johannesburg. But smoke was still rising from some of the dozens of buildings set ablaze by the thousands of rioters in an uncontrolled rampage of looting and violence. The rioting began Wednesday when police attempted to stop a demonstration by 10,000 black students protesting the mandatory use of the Afrikaans language in schools. On Thursday, it spread to another black ghetto, affected Johannesburg itself and took on the character of a general uprising against South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation and repression.

Charity begins at home for lottery's co-winner

CLEVELAND (AP) - The winner of Thursday's Ohio Lottery's Buckeye 1,000 drawing apparently believes charity begins at home.

About a month ago they decided to buy lottery tickets and share the winnings if they got lucky. Chapman said he will spend the money on his children's education. White said he will use the money for house improvements and travel

Ohio Lottery spokesmen said other winners were John Robb of Midland, $2,000 and Evelyn Kelby of Waterford,

Crime increases in 4 communities

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM Associated Press Writer

Cincinnati, Cleveland and Dayton each recorded declines in total crime during the first three months of 1976, while Akron, Canton, Columbus, Parma and Youngstown recorded increases, the FBI said Thursday.

Youngstown topped the list with a 32.2 per cent increase in its total crime index, including a 78.6 per cent increase in aggravated assaults. Youngstown's crime increase was more than double that of the second ranked city.

The statistics were included in the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, released Thursday. The report covers the first quarter of 1976 and compares crime figures with the first three months of 1975.

Nationally, serious crime increased 4 per cent during the quarter, compared with an 18 per cent increase in the first quarter last year, the FBI said.

Violent crimes dropped 7 per cent, but property crimes increased 5 percent, including a 14 per cent increase in larceny-theft.

Of the eight Ohio cities included in the statistics, all above 100,000 population, all reported declining or unchanged murder rates and most reported declines in rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Exceptions were Canton and Youngstown.

In property crimes, the eight Ohio cities generally reported declines in burglary-except for jumps in Parma and Youngstown-and increases in larceny-theft. Declines in auto theft rates were recorded in six cities, but Akron and Youngstown posted increases.

Youngstown's murder rate was unchanged, with eight murders reported in each quarter. Its forcible rape rate was up 9.1 per cent, but that represented only an increase from 11 reported rapes in the first quarter of 1975 to 12 in 1976.

Alleg

But Youngstown also reported a 45.6 per cent increase in burglaries, a 31.4 per cent increase in larceny-thefts, an 11 per cent increase in auto theft and a 9.2 per cent increase in robberies.

In contrast, Cleveland reported an overall crime decrease of 2.9 per cent. Murder dropped 16.9 per cent, rape 10.5 per cent, robbery 26.3 per cent and aggravated assault 19.7 per cent. Cleveland's only reported increase was in larceny-theft, up 14.7 per cent.

In other overall crime rates, Akron reported a 6.5 per cent increase, Canton a 7.1 per cent increase, Cincinnati a 3.1 per cent decrease and Columbus a 4.8 per cent increase.

Antirecession tax cuts may continue

WASHINGTON (AP) - After tentatively refusing to wipe out a series of tax breaks for wealthy investors, the Senate appears ready to extend all of last year's individual tax cuts for another 15 months.

A vote on continuing the tax reductions could come today.

The series of antirecession tax cuts enacted last year - amounting to about $180 a year for a typical family of four are due to expire July 1. That would mean withholding rates would go up immediately.

There has never been any doubt in Congress that the reductions would be extended. The only question was for how long

The Finance Committee, as part of a broad tax bill now being debated by the full Senate, voted to make half the tax cuts permanent while allowing the remainder to expire June 30, 1977.

This was to save the government money and to allow the next president and the new Congress to see how the economy is faring a year from now before deciding whether the entire package should be made permanent.

The Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., coupled that decision with a vote to end $1 billion in tax loopholes in 1977.

In so acting, the panel rejected two recommendations of the new Budget Committee headed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Muskie's committee suggested a full extension of the tax cut for 15 months three months more than Long's panel approved — and called for closing $2 billion worth of loopholes.

Muskie moved Thursday night to extend the tax cut for the full 15 months. Long promptly charged that Muskie was trying to "bust the budget"

of his own Budget Committee.

Muskie insisted the full tax cut was recommended by his committee and endorsed earlier this year by Congress. Unless the full tax cut is extended, said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D. Mass., middle-income families would face a tax increase a year from now, even while wealthy Americans were enjoying tax benefits approved by the Finance Committee.

Despite a 46-33 loss Thursday night, liberals are planning a second effort to reduce tax shelters that benefit persons in the 50-per-cent-or-higher tax brackets. If the liberals lose again, the Senate is likely to approve a Finance Committee package that reduces the benefits from tax shelters but does not cut them out altogether.

Kennedy and other liberals indicated they expect to win a second vote on eliminating the tax shelters.

Court protects silence without discreditation

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Supreme Court ruling protects the right of criminal suspects in police custody to remain silent without having their silence used to discredit testimony given in court

The court ruled 6 to 3 that the right to remain silent carries such protection. In another criminal law decision, the court ruled 7 to 2 that a defendant must be told all of the elements of the crime he is charged with before a judge can accept a guilty plea from him.

Judge John Paul Stevens wrote for the majority in that case. Justice William Rehnquist and Chief Justice Warren Burger, dissented, arguing that the decision "opens the door to countless...prisoners to withdraw their guilty pleas many years after they are entered.

The case arose from the murder of Mrs. Ada Francisco, whose body was found in a farm house in Fulton County, New York, in 1965.

She had been stabbed 40 times. Timothy Morgan, a 19-year old mentally retarded field hand, was charged with first-degree murder. He eventually pleaded guilty to second-degree murder. Morgan received a term of 25 years to life and did not appeal. Five years later, however, he asked a federal court to overturn his conviction. He said he would not have pleaded guilty if he had known that intent to cause death of his victim was an element of the declared in a three-hour summation. Robert Cesner, a Midwest attorney arguing to save two Vietnam veterans from execution, pleaded the Geneva Convention today in defense of all the mercenaries and blamed the FBI for allowing Gary Acker to sign on.

'If Acker was permitted by the FBI to come here, how was he to know it was wrong?" demanded the attorney from Columbus, Ohio, in an hour and 15 minute summing up argument.

Cesner's defense was to agree with the prosecutor in placing the blame on international organizations behind mercenaries. He said tahe the FBI agent who calleed on Acker after he appeared on TV with a mercenary recruiter "gave the appearance of legitimacy to his ill-fated adventure."

Monteiro denounced Britain, the United States, "decadent Western society" and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in his speech before the

The prosecution acknowledged there were few eyewitnesses to the murder and pillage allegedly committed by the mercenaries. Only four of 10 govern ment witnesses singled out particular mercenaries as responsible for killings

they claimed to have witnessed. 'It is impossible for the people to identify individual mercenaries," the prosecution contended.

'We don't consider them prisoners of war. They are outside the law," Monteiro boomed into the microphone. 'For their grave crimes against the Angolan people, they can only be punished by death by shooting.

He did not cite any specific crimes charged against the mercenaries. "Their major crime," he said, "is the crime of mercenarism.

The Americans on trial are Daniel Gearhart of Kensington, Md., Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., and Gustave Grillo of Jersey City, N.J.

They and the Britons fought for a Western-backed faction that was defeated in the civil war by a Marxist group, the Popular Movement.

Monteiro accused the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Britain, Zaire and South Africa of complicity in hiring "professional murderers in the pay of imperialism with dollars tainted with the blood of our people.'

Stock list moves ahead

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market swept ahead again today, responding to money-supply statistics that investors took as a favorable omen for the interest rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed more than 4 points in the early going to around the 1,008 level. Gainers took a 3-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues

After Thursday's close of the NYSE, the Federal Reserve reported a $200 million decline in the nation's money

The figures gave rise to hopes that the Fed would ease up on its credit policy and aim for a steady or even downward trend in interest rates.

Today's early prices included Pfizer, up 3/8 at 281/2; Chrysler, ahead 1/8 at 203/8; Walt Disney Productions, 13/8 higher at 57, and Citicorp, unchanged

Thursday's upsurge carried the Dow Jones industrial average ahead 14.57 points to 1,003.19.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 7-2 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index climbed .81 to 55.17.

eastern Mediterranean. The British sent a test convoy of 13 ars over the Beirut-Sidon-Damascus route today. The bodies of Meloy and Waring traveled with it in a blue-andwhite panel truck.

The United States sent a special military plane to Damascus to return the two bodies for funeral services in the Washington area Saturday. En route the plane was to pick up Waring's widow and one of their daughters in Athens. Meloy was a bachelor.

joint Palestinian-leftist The command maintained Lebanese secrecy about its interrogation of the persons arrested Thursday on suspicion of being the killers of the American diplomats. A Palestinian official said the accused men were all Lebanese, but he refused to divulge their number or their political affiliation.

Police sources reported Thursday that they were from the Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Organization, a small extremist urban guerrilla group. But the group issued a statement saying it had nothing to do with the assassinations.

Although Beirut continued quiet, a two-hour artillery and rocket duel occurred during the night between Syrian and Palestinian forces on the southern outskirts of the city

Syrian troops and tanks also struck deeper into central Lebanon and overran Ain Dara, the Palestinian commmand reported. The village overlooks the province of Chouf, the home of Kamal Jumblatt, the leader of the leftist Lebanese Moslems. The Palestinian communique said the Syrians put the village under curfew, began disarming its 4,000 inhabitants and shelled villages below.

Country music jamboree set to support 5 tax defendants

By GEORGE MALEK

Country and western music and free door prizes will be used Sunday to attract attention to the cause of five Washington C.H. residents charged with election law violations.

The purpose of a jamboree in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds is to promote the defense of the five defendants

Free will offerings will be taken throughout the day. The proceeds will be used to cover legal fees of the defendants.

Door prizes for the event have been supplied by sympathetic Washington C.H. area merchants, but some apparently misunderstood the cause to which they were contributing.

Because the issue is a political "hot potato" in Washington C.H., some of the merchants who contributed have asked that their names be withdrawn from the list of promoters.

Organized by Mrs. Richard Allen, 401 W. Elm St., the jamboree will feature six hours of country and western music. Performers include Eddie Adams, Joe D. Shannon, Billie Shirrell and the Zugg Brothers Co.

Entertainment will begin at 2 p.m. and continue until 8 p.m. Mrs. Allen said each of the recording artists has donated his time because of a belief in the jamboree's purpose.

Speaking during the afternoon will be William F. Stolzenburg Sr., 804 Maple St., the most widely known of the defendant's in the case, and former Washington City Council member John Stolzenburg and three others were arrested in April for alleged violation of election laws when they circulated petitions for the repeal of a now-defunct city income tax ordinance.

Each was charged with attesting to signatures on their petitions which had not been signed by the person whose name appeared on the document. City administration officials say most of the irregularities were instances where a husband or wife signed for his or her

The fifth defendant in the case, the Rev. C.H. Detty, a self-ordained Washington C.H. minister, allegedly signed the name of a member of his household who is no relation.

All five are to appear in Circleville Municipal Court in August to stand trial. Acting Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge John P. Case transferred the hearing to Circleville stating that an impartial jury could not be selected here.

New cook-matron hired at Fayette County jail

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L Thompson recently announced the appointment of a new cook and jail matron of the Fayette County jail.

The new cook-matron is Mrs. Evelyn McCoy and she replaces Mrs. Inez Dray, who retired May 14 after 10 years prompted the jamboree. These alleged injustices include not only the prosecution of those involved in circulating the petitions, but in the imposition of the city income tax as well.

The committee will have petitions for repeal of the current one-half per cent income tax at the Mahan Building throughout the day.

There will also be petitions seeking a vote to change from the managercouncil form of government to a mayor

The 1975 city income tax (which was a full one per cent) was removed after Washington C.H. residents voted two to one for its repeal. A vote on the form of government upheld the present system. Slightly more than 56 per cent of the voters favored retention.

Mrs. Allen said she expects a good turnout and strong showing of opposition to both the tax and the form of government. She also feels the people will express their opposition to the injustices the defendants are allegedly suffering.

Mrs. Allen noted, however, that she wants a fair appraisal of how city residents feel. She said she would have sheets available for signatures of those who wish to express support of the tax or the present government form.

Because the purpose of the meeting is to promote the defense of individuals who opposed the tax and form of government, however, she expects the majority of those attending will have similar attitudes

AREA MERCHANTS donated door door prizes to be given away free during the afternoon. More than 60 contributed.

Difficulty arose when some of the merchants realized that they had been contacted by the Citizens Defense Fund Committee, not the "Civil Defense Fund Committee.

The obvious similarity of words created quite a stir, most of which appears to fall on businessmen who minunderstood what was said.

Mrs. Allen insists that she distinctly said "Citizens Defense" to all merchants she approached for donations. She said she had asked for a con-tribution and added that she would provide free advertising if the merchant so desired.

In most cases, the merchants were happy to have their names used in advertising, she said. Mrs. Allen added that she gave a receipt to each business for its cash or merchandise and noted on the receipt whether or not they wanted the company name used in advertisement. Under her signature, she said, she abreviated the committee name by using "CDF.

When posters appeared promoting the defense jamboree, several merchants were apparently surprised to see their names included.

Seven of the 60 donors asked that their names be removed from a paid advertisement scheduled to appear in Friday's edition of the Record-Herald.

Dismayed to hear that the misunderstanding had arisen, Mrs. Allen contacted each of the merchants. In most cases, she said, the businessmen merely felt the issue was too controversial to become involved.

A few merchants said they had not realized the purpose of the meeting. Only one asked to have his contribution returned, Mrs. Allen said.

She added that she had apologized to each merchant for the error and offered a public denial of their support. None asked for such a public statement, Mrs. Allen stressed.

Although Richard Kilian, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, and Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott received several inquiries from merchants concerning solicitations for the jamboree, no formal complaints were filed in either office presidential election it can be confidently predicted that a multitude of Americans will be denied their right to vote. The distrubing fact is that over-stingent residency laws assure this.

A denial of the franchise

As always, various other circumstances will cut down on the number who exercise the franchise. Many people who are on the road, or institutionalized, or otherwise unable to get to the polls. will not help choose the next president. Even indifference will take its toll. Especially aggravating, though, is denial of the franchise because a voter has not lived long enough in this or that place to be registered for the election. It is a situation that needs reform.

If the Republicans have been counting on the older Democratic power structures to sabotage a Southerner, they are behind the times. Carter is not a wholly new phenomenon; after all, George Wallace had disadvantages among the black voters that Carter will not have

If the Republicans go with Reagan, the struggle between the "Eastern establishment" and "cowboy power" will be blurred. The Ripon Society, which is the voice of the so-called liberal Republicans (Rockefeller, Javits, Case), has warned that a Reagan convention victory will

'McGovernize" the Republican Party. Maybe the wish would prove farther to reality in some of the Northeastern states. If disgruntled Republican liberals were to cut Reagan in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, we might be treated to the strange spectacle of a Southern Democrat sweeping the

But, to balance this possibility, Reagan would hardly prove to be a 'McGovern' in California and Texas, which have the electoral college strength to counter possible losses in Pennsylvania and New York. Reagan, from southern California, represents 'rimster" and "cowboy power" even more than Carter, who had difficulties in Western primaries that he never encountered in his own Deep South.

Just as a baseball team, if it is to be a contender, must have a third baseman who can "go to his left," the Republicans need a candidate or candidates who can go to the South and West. If Ford is the Republican nominee he will need the 100 per cent support of the Reaganites who have given Ron his majorities in Southern and Western primaries. Unfortunately for Ford, many of these happen to be old Wallace Democrats. Something might be done to lure them into a permanent switch if Reagan were to be named the vice presidential candidate on a Ford Ticket. But would a victorious Ford have a free hand to take Reagan as a running mate? Those "uncommitted" delegates who went to Ford at Nelson Rockefeller's behest may hold the key to a mystery. Were they delivered without a prior understanding about the vice presidency?

A Jerry Ford who is beholden to Rockefeller may, despite the Ripon Society, turn out to be the "McGovern" of the Republican Party

Whatever happens at the Republican convention, there must be a special effort made to placate the South and the West. Northestern Rpublicanism can no longer do it alone.

Law should settle rate controversy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Fly-bynight wig salesmen who operate out of rented hotel salons and elsewhere can be nailed for barbering or practicing cosmetology without a license under new Ohio statutes which become effective at midnight tonight.

Two bills by Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, and others, don't affect wig shops and department stores, unless they actually perform fittings for hair pieces. "It doesn't affect across the counter sales," said Edwin C. Jeffers, executive secretary of the Ohio State Board of Barber Examiners.

Meshel's companion bills provide the first major revisions in state barber and beauty shop laws in several years. They include modest fee increases for practitioners and update training qualifications. But they also make changes geared more to helping the professional than housekeeping.

Jeffers said the problem of illegal wig fitters has become serious in Ohio. You know, of course, that hair pieces have become a big business all across the country," he said, adding "some guy can check into a hotal, stay there a day, rip off his customers, and be out of town the next day."

Under the new law, he said, "we can get him for breaking the law. We couldn't touch him the way it has been up to now." The fitting of wigs demands regulation, he said, because of sanitation and sterilization required with putting clamps into the skin.

Another change made by Meshel's legislation is a requirement of shop licenses for the first time; $25 for the initial license and inspection and $3 a year thereafter. The license was requested because unlicensed shop owners, whose numbers are on the increase, are able to escape enforcement of regulations. Jeffers explained the board has been powerless to act because the owners of shops have not had licenses that could be suspended or revoked for failure to meet sanitary and other requirements.

Other changes in the laws grant reciprocity to licensed barbers and cosmetologists in other states who move into Ohio, and permit reductions in training requirements for persons deciding to leave one of the professions to enter the other.

Under new provisions, a cosmetologist who wanted to become a barber, or a barber electing to become a cosmetologist, could make the change after only 1,000 hours of training. Beginning barbers must have 1,800 hours of training while persons entering cosmetology must have 1,500.

Ohio has about 15,000 licensed barbers and about 100,000 cosmetologists, although Jeffers said there is a large turnover in the latter because many persons who enter cosmetology at the 10th grade level in vocational schools decide later they want to do something else. Ohio's vocational schools don't include barbering in their curricula.

Dear

Daughters 'trapped'

by elderly mother

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 88 and lives with my sister. Every time my sister wants to take a trip, my mother insists that I stay with her. The problem is that it is not always convenient for me, but she absolutely refuses to have a "sitter," as she calls

Mother has over half a million dollars in the bank and investments that pay her a very handsome steady income, so she can well afford a live-in companion.

When we (her daughters) were growing up, she was far from a loving mother. She used to abuse us, physically and verbally, so we have very little love for her. (How could we have?)

My husband resents the fact that we are not free to make plans. We are both retired and have ample income, so Mama's inheritance means nothing to us. We just want to live our own lives. Please help

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Why are you trapped? If you feel that your mother's demands are unreasonable, tell her so. And if she disinherits you, she disinherits you! There is no price tag on your independence, unless you yourself place one there.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and now planning my wedding. I have three older sisters who are all married. The eldest is 27.

My problem is that I can't afford to have more than four attendants.

Everyone in my family (especially my mother) has been pressuring me to have my sisters in the wedding party, or at least to have my oldest sister as my matron of honor.

I love my sisters very much, and don't want to hurt them,, but I think a wedding is the time to show friends how much you think of them. My sisters already know how much I care for

Also, my friends are much prettier and can add more class to my wedding than my siters can. Is there anything wrong with my feeling this way? WEDDING PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: If you really want to show "class" ask your eldest sister to be your matron of honor and your other two sisters to be bridesmaids. And select one friend to show her how much you care for her.

DEAR ABBY: IOWAN wrote: "The man who wanted to sue his parents for having circumcised him as an infant is lucky he wasn't living in the 18th century. In those days they castrated young males to combine the power of the adult male singer with the high range of the female alto or soprano.

You replied, "That's news to me." Abby, in my teens, I heard one such singer. He was called a "castrato," and it was common knowledge how the effect was created.

I have been singing for about 75 years, but when I was a lad in my teens and had just started taking voice lessons, the Vatican choir came to my town on tour. One of its members was a portly man in his middle years who sang with a pure soprano voice and again, everybody knew how he could do

I was told that he was one of the last to have had the castration operation before it was outlawed.

Candidate should be man of faith

Publication of sea scrolls sought

By MARCUS ELIASON Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) - Scholars are awaiting publication this year of what they feel may be one of the most important Dead Sea Scrolls ever found. The so-called "Temple Scroll" is expected to throw new light on life in the Holy Land around Christ's time. The scroll is being deciphered by an Israeli archeologist, Prof. Yigael Yadin, who has been associated with the scrolls since they first were discovered in 1947 and were proclaimed the greatest find in the annals of

Biblical history. Yadin purchased the "Temple Scroll" from an Arab merchant in Bethlehem in 1967. The merchant had previously bought the scroll from Bedouin tribesmen who found it in a cave. From his archeological sources Yadin learned the merchant had the scroll and as soon as Israeli forces moved into Bethlehem in the 1967 Middle East war, he went there to bargain and make the purchase. Yadin has disclosed some section of it which illuminate in detail the Ten Commandments and the 603 Biblical orders on Jewish custom that are attached to them. The scroll also carries exact specifications for the building of the great Jewish temple in Jerusalem.

The entire work will be published in English and Hebrew by the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and, in the words of one expert, will provide "dramatic new data" on the Essenes, the ascetic Jewish community that lived on the shores of the Dead Sea 20 miles east of Jerusalem and wrote the scrolls, which remained hidden for about 20

centuries The hiding places were chosen by the author, a monkish Jewish sect who fled the increasingly secular atmosphere of Jerusalem for the brooding silence and moon-like landscape of Qumran, on the Dead Sea.

commentaries on the Bible and works on Jewish customs and codes. The Bible texts were the earliest known copies of the holy book, and in most cases were remarkably similar to the translations written centuries later and adopted by Judaism and

Christianity. Yadin's scroll also will add new demensions to the Book of Ezekiel and

In the center of the garden is a white cedar, the original brought from her home in Virginia, by Mrs. Worthington. This tree was replaced in 1970 by one of equal size. Also unusual are the old knobby catalpa trees and a grafted pear tree planted by the oldest son, James T. Worthington. Worthington. Godreid Fink, a German immigrant, laid out the garden in 1815. RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) - With just a flick of the switch, you too can form your own oil cartel, monopolize the world's supply or build your own nuclear reactor.

It's done with Dr. Bryan Valett's Energy-Environment Simulator, an analog computer that allows any one the chance to control production and use of all energy sources.

"They can do most anything they choose," said Valett. "We had one group one time declare war and in about 20 years all the resources were gone because everyone had tooled up for war.'

Since the simulators cost around $2,200 apiece, Valett doesn't expect them to become a 21st-centrury version of the "Monopoly" game, but in the past eight months some 32,000 persons have taken part in Valett's program to dramatize energy shortages. He expects the total to reach 60,000 by the end of this year after another 40 simulators are built.

"It's a generator of discussions," says Valett. "Many people are suspicious whether an energy progrim truly exists. And many who believe it complain. Then why doesn't somebody do something about it?"

Valett is director of the Northwest College and University Association for Science (NORCUS), formed in 1963 at the Joint Center for Graduate Study to bring college faculty members to the nuclear energy facilities at Hanford for research projects.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration has granted $125,000 to NORCUS to train personnel and to provide schools and organizations throughout the 22 western states with the simulator program.

"The program is a participation program by the audience. They actually get on to the machine," said Valett. The audience is divided into six groups, each having a control panel hooked up to the computer with the decision they make.

"Each unit controls one-sixth of the world's energy supply," he said. "The decisions they make affect what happens to each group. They must live

"IF they choose to produce more oil, or mine more coal, they have to discuss the consequences. There is a section on resource and development that allows them to develop new technology. But if they turn that button up they have to wait 10 years for any reserve to come out of the technology section because it takes about that long.

When Valett and design engineer Don Frame first tried to put together some kind of program to increase public awareness, they built a Rube Goldberg kind of hydraulic device using buckets

As the coal dropped into small and smaller containers it would demonstrate the inefficiencies in the system. "It was dramatic all right—but messy," says NORCUS associate director Dr. John Yegge. They then decided an electronic model would be more flexible-"and there wouldn't be anything to mop up afterward." The first simulator-with complex dials, flasing lights and warning buzzers - took 17 days and $5,000 to build. The one in use now, with lap control boards to hand out to the audience, was designed by Dr. John Amend of Montana State University.

Valett has the parts manufactured together in workshops where the people who will present the programs are

He noted that the nine-week trial lasted longer than predicted, but said the judicial process moves at a slow deliberate pace.

Duncan said the community should 'expect that the case be handled carefully and dispassionately" with adherence to the fundamentals that the system provides.

He said the community also should understand that the court is well aware of the significance of "this kind of litigation and its gross importance to the community.'

The opposing lawyers expressed confidence of victory.

Argentina police chief killed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) -A bomb killed federal police chief Brig. Gen. Cesareo Cardozo early today as he returned home with his wife, mother and a daughter, police said.

The three women were seriously injured.

According to police, the 50-year-old Cardozo, named to office after the March 24 military coup against Isabel Peron, had just gone up in the elevator of his fashionable apartment in the residential district of Palermo.

He opened a separate entry door from the elevator to his apartment and a blast killed him and wounded the others, police said.

Several officers of his personal guard were believed to be on duty at the time and it was not immediately explained how anyone could have planted the bomb on the upper floor.

Cardozo was the second federal police chief killed by a bomb in the past 2½ years. Chief Alberto Villar was assassinated in November 1974 as he was starting out on a pleasure cruise with his wife on the river near Buenos Aires. At that time, the left-wing Peronist guerrillas "Montoneros" said they killed Villar. Last December, retired police chief Rafael Caceres Monie was shot down with his wife in the provincial city of Parana, capital of the province of Entre Rios.

AP Television Writer NEW YORK (AP) - In late August Jim Hartz will turn over the studio end of hosting NBC's "Today" show to Tom Brokaw and go on the road as what NBC calls the "travelling co-host" of the two-hour program.

In some circles, this is called a massive shakeup, as the show, suffering ratings sag and the muchpublicized adios of Barbara Walters, tries to refurbish its appearance and get those ratings up and viewers back.

For Hartz, co-host of "Today" almost two years, it's one of the hazards of the job. But he says it's also the chance to do something he's wanted to do knock around the United States doing for "Today" the kind of human interest stories the late Ernie Pyle did for newspapers in the 1930s.

Hartz, 36, is no stranger to the road, having done a series of bicentennial segments from various states for the show this year. In fact, he says his travels for those segments led to his new on-the-road job.

A lot of people liked them, sponsors liked them and they got higher ratings for the show than during the rest of the week," he said of his bicentennial segments, all aired on Fridays.

'I guess it turned out that a lot of people liked that better than they liked me sitting behind a studio desk.

"And it's also no secret that we're down a (ratings) point or two from the record highs we had a year ago ... with Barbara leaving, I guess there was concern they'd (NBC officials) have more ratings problems.

"So I guess they just seized this opportunity to make a structural overhaul in the show.

consideration of that overhaul, did Hartz seek the travelling co-host job or did NBC News chief Richard C. Wald say changes had to be made and would he like the job? "Well," chuckled the softspoken Oklahoman, "let's put it this way: It was presented as an offer I couldn't refuse. He said when he got the offer, his main consideration was his family - a wife and three kids. He said after his bicentennial-story travels, they looked forward to seeing him home more often "and frankly, so did I.

Theatre names managing director

SABINA -Tony Mangia, of Columbus, has been selected to serve as managing director for the second summer season of the Sabina Barn Theatre in Sabina, Ohio.

Mangia, a 1970 Columbus Whitehall-Yearling High School graduate, and a 1974 recipient of a bachelor of arts degree from Otterbein College, will coordinate all phases of the summer stock company, including the direction of two major productions, "God's Favorite" and "Godspell."

Only in its second season, the Sabina Barn Theatre began under the direction and auspices of Otterbein College professor Fred J. Thayer and the United Methodist Church in the Southwest Ohio district. Thayer and his firstyear company renovated a barn-type structure into a small, intimate theatre aimed at bringing quality, meaningful drama to area residents

This year, with the help of 16 competent and extremely talented actors and technicians, Mangia hopes to see the theatre and its appeal grow to new

"Our job is to provide entertainment and a meaningful experience to our audiences. We hope to enable the audience to live their lives just a little better because of what happens in the theatrical experience. For centries, theatre was used as a tool to teach. Today, at Sabina, we too are holding the mirror up to nature, hoping to let people see life in new ways," Mangia

Mangia believes in his art, seeing it as perhaps the most meaningful of all the arts. He comes to Sabina from a pionner program for the performing arts in the Akron City School District. Mangia served in Akron last year as a teacher in a new and exciting career exploratory program for high school students desiring to enter the per-forming arts field. After Sabina this summer, he will return to develop the program for its second year.

The Sabina Barn Theatre, located on the Sabina Campgrounds, opens on June 25, 26, and 27 with Neil Simon's newest comedy hit, "God's Favorite" and is followed on July 2, 3 and 4 by William Gibson's famous story of Helen Keller, "The Miracle Worker." "Godspell" completes the theatre's offerings on July 9, 10 and 11. The musical, based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will have repeat performances on July 18, 24 and August 1 and 7. "God's Favorite" will repeat July 16 and 31, while "The Miracle Worker" will be staged again July 17, 23, 25 and 30 and August 6.

Special dinner-theatre performances will be offered Friday and Saturday nights with a smorgasbord buffet beginning at 6:30 p.m. and curtain at 8:15 p.m. Sunday matinees will start at

Gregory passes through Columbus on hunger walk

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Gregory has passed the half-way point on a 3,100-mile cross-country run from Los Angeles to New York meant to dramatize the problem of hunger in this country and the world.

Dressed in a sweat suit and backed by an introduction from Lt. Gov. Richard Celeste, Gregory predicted Thursday that "food riots" could break out if the government does not act to alleviate hunger.

"Now there's an actual problem of getting food on the table," he said. "I don't think this can happen much

The 44-year-old comedian turned social activist called on the national leadership to "say to the hungry poor, you won't starve.

Thus far, his proposal to President Ford for a new independent cabinet post of Secretary of Food and Nutrition has drawn no response, he said. "I think we should stop looking at food as a privilege," he told a Statehouse news conference, packed with his supporters and joggers who joined him for a few miles through Columbus. "Somewhere we must say we're not going to tolerate hunger

Gregory said fundraising was not a major focus of his marathon jaunt, but described it rather as an effort to dramatize the "food crisis that exists in America today. "We're not talking about the critical shortage of food as much as high prices of food," he said. He wants the government to make free food stamps available to those to destitute to pay under the existing plan.

"You'd be surprised how good this town looked to us when we got here," he said, "because we know we don't have that far to go."

Averaging about 50 miles a day, Gregory, who started in Los Angeles April 21, hopes to reach New York on

Ticks mailed to Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) - The FBI would not disclose the recipients of at least two letters containing supposedly dangerous ticks received in the Cincinnati

area this week. According to C. Edwin Enright, assistant agent in charge of the Cincinnati FBI office, the letters and ticks have been sent to Washington, D.C., for examination. He would not say Thursday to whom the letters were mailed, but did confirm the existence of more than one such letter

Enright and officials at Procter & Gamble Co. would not comment on reports that one letter containing ticks was received at the Cincinnati-based consumer products company. On Tuesday, a letter bomb was delivered to the home of Edward Harness, chairman of the board at Procter & Gamble.

The assistant agent in charge said FBI Director Clarence Kelley would release a statement when the investigation is completed.

State park cabin fee increase set

COLUMBUS - Price increases for rental of state-operated cabins at Ohio's state parks will go into effect July 1, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Fee increases were included in administrative rules adipted by the department's Division of Parks and Recreation following a public hearing in Columbus May 21.

Under the rules, the summer season cost of a deluxe housekeeping cabin from April 1 to Oct. 31 will be $155 a week or $35 a day effective July 1; and $165 a week or $37.50 a day effective Jan. 1 1977. Off season rates for deluxe cabins are lower than in-season rates.

Standard housekeeping cabins, which are open only April 1-Oct. 31, will rent for $117 a week or $26 a day effective July 1; and $130 a week or $27 a day effective Jan. 1, 1977.

The rates to be in effect July 1 for state-operated cabins already are in effect for cabins operated for the Ohio Department of Natural Resources by Ohio Inns, Inc., at Burr Oak, Hueston Woods, Punderson, Salt Fork and Shawnee state parks.

Ralph Vanzant, chief of the division of Parks and Recreation, said an increase in the rental price of cabins placed in effect last year was the first increase since 1970.

'We're still trying to catch up with our costs of operation," he said.

A 25-cent, across-the-board increase for all camping fees will be effective Jan. 1, 1977. For example, the new nightly in-season rate for a Class A campsite with electricity will be $4.

Next year's nightly fee for use of camping facilities provided under the division's "rent-a-camp" program will be $8, including camping

Cold front generates thunderstorms

By The Associated Press A cold front pushing eastward is generating lines of thunderstorms that rumbled across the plains of Oklahoma and central and eastern Kansas into western Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota

Most of the severe activity was registered in the eastern half of Kansas where high winds, heavy rain and some hail occurred.

During Thursday evening, funnel clouds were sighted in the eastern half Thunderstorms traveled through central and eastern Texas into northern Louisiana and southwest Kansas. Thundershowers also reached across Florida into Alabama and Georgia.

Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms touched eastern Colorado and the Rockies in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

A large high pressure was sending colder air over the northern half of the rockies across the northern plains to the upper Mississippi Valley and into the central plains.

Mild temperatures in the 70s stretch today from the lower Mississippi Valley into Wisconsin. The pleasantly mild weather also extended east to the Atlantic coast. Lower 60s were seen as far north as western New York and the upper 60s touched New England.

High pressure over the Pacific coast states has brought clear skies with temperatures mostly in the 60s and 70s.

The cloudless conditions over most of the West Coast extends through the southern half of the Intermountain region and the southern Rockies. The rest of the nation has generally cloudy to partly cloudy skies

Temperatures around the nation early this morning ranged from 36 at Gillette, Wyo., to 92 at Phoenix, Ariz.

The forecast for today is thunderstorms and showers will occur from the central Rockies to the Texas Gulf Coast to the southern half of the Atlantic Coast north through the upper Mississippi Valley and western Great Lakes. The most likely area of precipitation will extend from Arkansas through Wisconsin. Temperatures will be warm east of the Mississippi River, over southern Texas and west of the Continental Divide. The rest of the nation will be mild to cool.

Also to be increased next year are fees for state-owned boat docks and tieup stakes, privately-owned boat docks on state land, and other watercraftrelated facilities. For example, seasonal rental for a stat-owned boat dock next year will increase to $85. The new administrative rules of the Division of Parks and Recreation also assure continued benefits for senior citizens and totally disabled veterans at Ohio's 63 state parks.

Senior citizens receive discounts for particular services at state parks through the "Golden Buckeye Card" program of the Ohio Commission on Aging. Permanently and totally disabled veterans may camp in state parks without charge because of a recently-enacted state law.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes issued

executive orders in April authorizing immediate implementation of benefits for senior citizens and veterans so they would not have to wait for promulgation of administrative rules.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has published a revised edition of its "Lodge and Cabin Accommodations" brochure, listing the new cabin rates along with lodge room rates. The brochure also explains what facilities are available with the rental of a cabin or lodge room, and lists phone numbers and addresses for reservations

A profile in courage

'Miracle woman' and 'monster' machine

Record-Herald Staff Writer

We all have our bouts with physical ailments and when we do, we are usually more than willing to impart the details of our aches and pains to any friend, relative or neighbor who is willing to listen (or, who is cornered into listening!) We curse and complain about an aching big toe or our per-sistent sinus headache in hopes that others will sympathize. Chronic complainers, as we all know, are a dime a dozen.

Most people are quite capable of making the proverbial "mountain out of a mole hill" when it comes to describing their latest physical af-fliction. On the other hand, there are those unique individuals who don't dwell on their illnesses no matter how truly devastating they might, in fact, be. These people, who have lived through the real hard-core diseases, the likes of which many of us have never witnessed (thankfully) would rather push thoughts of suffering into the recesses of their mind in contrast to those minor casualities who like to besiege others with the intracacies of their ailments.

Mrs. Letty Winn, 912 S. Fayette St., is one of the staunch survivors. She has been through it all and is still around to talk about it, which she does hesitantly when pressed to do so, sure that her ordeal is of no interest to others. The 61year-old Mrs. Winn is a profile in courage and her story might help others who are faced with the crisis she dealt with and will deal with until her dying day

In 1973, Mrs. Winn was a normal, hard-working individual who had never been physically plagued with anything worse than the run-of-the-mill childhood diseases. Suddenly, soon after she thought she'd recovered from a throat virus, she began to swell. In no time at all, she had gained 46 pounds, going from her regular weight of 114 pounds to 160. She was rushed to Jewish Hospital, in Cincinnati, where they drained her lungs which had filled with fluid. Here it was discovered that her kidneys were not functioning, and consequently, were unable to rid Mrs. Winn of excess bodily fluids which were responsible for her sudden balloon-like appearance. She was transferred from Jewish Hospital to Christ Hospital in Cincinnati where a kidney machine was available.

Mrs. Winn, who, in the past, spent a good year of her life in several hospitals throughout Ohio, was constantly being uprooted and sent elsewhere because the doctors at the various hospitals were convinced that there was nothing they could do for her. They were resigned to her impending demise. Time and time again Paul Winn was warned that he would lose his wife within the next 72 hours. But, he

serve absolutely no purpose.
"When I entered Christ Hospital, I sort of left the world for a few months. I didn't know anything that was going on and I don't remember anything from that period," Mrs. Winn stated. She added that she didn't particularly like to think about that time. She was unconscious for three months but regained consciousness with her brain intact, which usually isn't the case after such a lengthy period of being comatose, which may well be why the medical people at Christ Hospital call her the "miracle woman"

Home since May of last year, Mrs. Winn recalled the doctors' and nurses' reactions when it appeared that she was going to get better. "They were so happy for me because none of them thought that I was going to come around. When I did regain consciousness they began telling me stories of how terribly I had treated them during my semi-comatose period. I would yell at them and anyone else who came into my room. They couldn't believe that I was the same person because I was so nice once I was feeling better. Being cruel isn't my nature, didn't know what I was doing when was being mean and I told them that I didn't want to hear about it."

Mrs. Winn, who has a permanent catheter in her stomach, has undergone kidney-related surgery 15 times. "They fed me intravaneously but then the veins in my arms collapsed. They had to strip the arteries from my legs and put them into my arms." She explained how the arteries from the left leg went into the right arm and vice versa. According to Mrs. Winn, the leg arteries are the only arteries that can be transferred elswhere in the body. Eventually, the leg arteries placed in my arms collapsed and they put a bovine calf's arterie in my arm, but it too failed to function correctly." The calf's arterie is used in such cases because it is quite similar to the human arterie. "It came to a point when the doctors had to resort to other means of feeding me (through her stomach). I told them that I'd try to get along without the insertion of another calf's arterie because there was no assurance that this second attempt would work.'

When it became apparent that Mrs. Winn would recover sufficiently to go home, the doctors suggested that she learn how to use the peritineal machine, a kidney machine, so that she could take it home with her, but she told them, "Lord, I could never learn to run that thing! I can't remember very well any more." The doctors reprimanded her saying, "You are lucky to have a brain at all considering that you layed unconscious for three months.'

Mrs. Winn has spent the past year traveling to Cincinnati every other day for her treatments which consisted of 10 hours attached to the kidney machine plus the drive to and from. This means of treatment was too demanding, so Mrs. Winn learned to operate the complex machine which if formidable looking. Only two kidney patients from Christ Hospital have mastered the peritineal machine: Mrs. Winn, and a boy from West Virginia.

'When I agreed to learn how to run the machine, they put me on a three week self-run at the hospital. I panicked. No one was around. It was just me and that machine. It was quite frieghtening, but I learned how to use

Mrs. Winn has had the machine in her home for the past month and she attaches herself to it every other night for a 10-hour period. She says that the best day of her life was when the machine was delivered to her house and she knew that she wouldn't have to make the trip to Cincinnati anymore. "I call the machine the 'monster' but it's my

She explained the mechanism which is relatively hard for the medical layperson to comprehend. "The machine goes into inflow and pumps fluid into my body, they there's a staying period of 16 minutes in which the fluid remains in my body. Then the machine goes into outflow and the fluid drains for 10 minutes. This process is repeated continously over a 10-hour time span."

Before using the peritineal machine, Mrs. Winn was required to lie flat on her back for 40 hours at a time while bottles of dextrose and various medicines were fed into her catheter. It took one hour for each of the 40 bottles to drain. Considering the inconvenience of this method, Mrs. Winn is quite pleased with the peritineal procedure. 'Being dependent on this machine is an inconvenience and my salvation at the same time.

Saying that she will never be completely well, Mrs. Winn said that she'd gained back three pounds since coming home last May, at which time she weighed 98 pounds. Mrs. Winn lost her accumualted weight in "no time at all" but she wouldn't recommend her means for weight loss as a method for dieting. In remarkable good spirits, Mrs. Winn said that she is capable of doing most of her housework and laundry. She gets out in the car and does the shopping, but added that her husband, who is an auctioneer, does what ever she is unable to do. "I'm tired most of the time, but other than that, I feel okay. I meet people on the street and they tell me that I look good and then others, who I've known all of my life, don't even recognize me. I don't think I look any different except for a few more wrinkles and gray hairs.'

Her diet is limited. She can't have (Please turn to Page 20)

Historic Chillicothe-Bainbridge area

Lets tour Ohio series

Ashville (19), which is just east of U.S. 23, north of Circleville, has for 47 years focused on the fourth day of July for its all-out festival.

This year's celebration has been designated as the official bicentennial event of the Ohio Festivals and Events Association. This will be a jubilant occasion! The two-day festival will feature a mammoth fish fry, beauty pageants, displays and fireworks on both nights. The 5th will be highlighted by the 11 a.m. parade and continuous free entertainment, including a contest of barbershop quartets.

While you're in the area, if you are a camper, you may want to stay at the beautiful A.W. Marion State Park (13), and do some fishing and boating, or visit Logan Elm (12), which is five miles south of Circleville, east of U.S. 23 on Ohio 361, and picnic there at the site of the legendary speech of Chief Logan in 1774. Another attraction just west of Circleville, one mile south of U.S. 22 is the Cicleville Canal (11). This is a five-mile stretch of the Ohio-Erie Canal and you can get in some great fishing and hiking.

South on U.S. 23 or Ohio 104 is Chillicothe. Just outside the city on Ohio 104 is the Mound City Group National Monument (17),. Twentythree perhistoric mounds lie within the low embankment. This 67-acre tract is a restoration of one of the finest examples of Hopewell Culture, who inhabited the Scioto Valley from about 300 B.C. to 600 A.D. A visitor center contains offices, exhibits and public facilities. An observation deck provides an outstanding view of the area, as well as a recorded description and history. The monument is open daily during daylight hours,. The visitor center is open June 1 thru Labor Day, daily 8-8. The rest of the year it is open 8-5; closed Jan. 1 and Dec. 25.

Adena (1), at the western end of Allen Ave. off Ohio 104, is the stone mansion, now a state memorial, built in 1806-1807 for Thomas Worthington, the sixth governor of Ohio. The mansion was designed by Benjamin Latrobe, who directed the construction of the nation's capitol. Overlook provides a breathtaking view of the hills reproduced on the Great Seal of Ohio. There is a charge for admission. Adena is open 10-5, Tuesday through Sunday, April through October. It is closed on major holidays.

The Chillicothe Gazatte (2), at 50 W. Main St. is the oldest continuously published newspaper west of the Alleghenies. Housed in a replica of Ohio's first capital building, it is open to visitors Monday through Friday, 8:30-5 and Saturday until noon. It is closed on major holidays.

The Ross County Historical Society Museum (3), at 45 W. Fifth St. features exhibits of pioneer crafts, firearms, furniture, toys and costumes. There is also the Indian room and Ohio's Constitution Table. Open February through October, Thursday through Tuesday, 1-5. There is an admission charge.

In the evening, just a little northeast of Chillicothe, at Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheatre (4), experience history first hand in the spectacular outdoor drama "Tecumseh", the reliving of the Battle of Tippicanoe. Begins at 8:45 p.m. nightly except Sunday, June 21 to Sept. 4.

Just south of Chillicothe is Scioto Trail State Park (5), one of the three state parks in the area. One particular attraction of the park is that scuba is permitted. The other parks are Pike, south of Bainbridge, and Rocky Fork, near Hillsboro. Each has a character all its own and offers a wide variety of outdoor activities.

Seip Mount State Memorial (9) contains the great central mound of the Seip complex, which originally consisted of several mounds and a series of earthen embankments. There is a pavilion displaying graphic material, related to the mound complex. Picnic facilities are also available.

facilities are also available.

The Dental Museum (6) which is right on Main Street in Bainbridge was the country's first dental school operating from 1826-1831. On display are dental instruments and equipment used during pioneering days of dental surgery. Open April 15 to Nov. 1, Friday through Wednesday, 10-5. No charge.

Southwest of Bainbridge, off Ohio 41 is Fort Hill State Memoial (7), the prehistoric earthworks believed to have been built by the Hopewell Indians. A museum with displays on geology, plant and animal life and on the Hopewell Indians, is open 9:30-5 Tuesday through Sunday, March to December. Admission charge.

Paint Valley Skyline Drives (8), starting in Bainbridge, are four loop routes, varying from nine to 38 miles that travel from the valleys to the summits of Ohio's most spectacular hills. This is a trip you'll want to plan again in the fall for Bainbridge's "Fall Festival of the Leaves" when Paint Valley's magnificent display is further enhanced by the celebration, old time crafts and free entertainment. This year's festival will be held Oct. 14-

No. 14 on the map is the new Paint Creek Lake with its beautiful outdoor facilities.

West of Bainbridge and a mile south of U.S. 50, is Seven Caves (10). Each cavern is electrically illuminated and there are three separate foot trails in the 100-acre park. Open daily 8-6:30, May 24 to Sept. 1. Admission charge. Open 8-5, Mar. 15-May 23, and Sept. 2-Nov. 15.

Nov. 15.

In Hillsboro (18) is Ayers Drug Store, which is the oldest drug store east of the Alleghenies, in continuous operation since 1808; the oldest court house building in the state, dating from 1834; and Highland House, which was used as a tavern and hotel for many years, and now has been restored by the Highland County Historical Society and contains 14 rooms of period furnishings.

North again in Washington C.H. is the Fayette County Historical Center and Museum (15), is a beautiful midVictorian mansion built in 1875. The museum is open Sunday, 2-5 and weekdays by appt.

The Fayette County Court House (16) opened May 1, 1885, displays the murals of Archibald M. Willard, painter of the famous "Spirit of '76".

Full circle again to Circleville on U.S. 22, you'll pass Deer Creek State Park (20) on Ohio 207.

With all the sights, you may plan to come back again to fit it all in. Make sure you are in the area Oct. 20-23 for Circleville's world-renowned "Pumpkin Show". This is a delightful festival with continuous entertainment from noon until midnight, seven parades, known as the "Greatest Free Show on Farth"

new electrical-electronics engineering program was given final approval by the Ohio Board of Regents

According to Tom Cunningham, instructor in engineering technology at Southern State College, the major difference between the electarical and the electronics programs is that electrical engineering deals with heavy machinery and electronics deals with lightweight machinery

In addition to technical courses, students also take liberal arts courses to provide a general theoretical background for their education.

Because many students are employed full-time and go to school parttime, a cooperative experience is not included in the program. "Fewer than one in 10 students in my evening classes are fresh out of high school," said Cunningham.

Technical education provides the students with more general and theoretical training than on-the-job experience, Cunningham said. He noted that on-the-job trainees are usually taught specialized skills that fit the needs of the company where they

'We can provide more hands-on experience with a wider variety of things and we can concentrate it in a shorter period of time," said Cunningham.

Cunningham is optimistic about job opportunities in the electricalelectronics engineering field. The outlook "is good for someone who is skilled," he said.

The electrical and electronics engineering areas lead to the associate in applied science degree. Classes meet on both the north and south campuses, although there is more of a demand for classes on the north campus at this

Although the electrical-electronics engineering technology program is complete in itself, credits earned are transferable to other institutions. Cunningham suggested that a student wishing to transfer credits choose his or her four-year college before beginning the engineering program at Southern State College. The Southern State course of study can then be designed to fit the student's needs as well as meet the requirements of the four-year college.

Hays to quit committee position

By PEGGY SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wayne Hays, whose relationship with Elizabeth Ray touched off the Capitol Hill payroll-sex scandal, will resign in the next several days as chairman of tahe House Administration Committee, according to sources close to the Democratic leadership.

Hays also has indicated to colleagues that he will soon announce plans not to run for re-election in November, the sources said Thursday night.

Hays is recovering in an Ohio hospital after taking an overdose of sleeping pills.

William Dickinson, R-Ala, Rep. Republican on ranking Administration Committee, said Hays' decision will be made known in a letter and that the Ohio Democrat will cite reasons of health for leaving the committee post.

Hays previously stepped down as chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, which channels campaign funds to candidates.

Rep. Frank Thompson, DN.J., the Administration Committee's senior Democrat behind Hays, was said to be the leading choice to succeed him as chairman.

It was Hays' relationship with former committee staffer Miss Ray that started a series of allegations about sex in Capitol Hill offices.

Miss Ray last month told the news media that she was paid $14,000 a year to do nothing but supply sex to Hays. She said she couldn't type, take dictation or even answer the telephone.

Hays at first denied any relations with Miss Ray but later took the House floor to acknowledge that he had a "personal relationship" with her. Hays insisted she was a skilled office worker and that the taxpayers got their money's worth.

Hays, now finishing his 14th two-year term in Congress, went on to win the Democratic primary in his eastern Ohio district earlier this month and now faces a Republican and an independent in the November election.

Meanwhile, District of Columbia officials said they are reconsidering a policy that exempts members of from Congress misdemeanors.

The reassessment was prompted by published reports that Rep. Waggonner, D-La., was detained earlier this year after soliciting a policewoman disguised as a postitute. Soliciting a prostitute misdemeanor punishable by a $250 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

Waggonner said, however, that police were satisfied with his account of the incident and let him go. His story differed from that of police.

Police Chief Maurice J. Cullinane confirmed that Waggonner was detained and then released. He explained that under department policy members of Congress are immune from arrest in all misdemeanor cases.

Waggonner told reporters that he was not picked up for soliciting a decoy policewoman. Instead, he said, after a woman tried and failed to entice him, an unmarked car pulled alongside, frightening him and causing him to flee

He said he was stopped after a short chase and taken to the police station, where he gave his version of the in-

In another incident, Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, was arrested last weekend in Salt Lake City for allegedly soliciting undercover policewomen posing as prostitutes.

Meanwhile, freshmen members of the House on Thursday called for trimming some benefits enjoyed by congressmen, closer scrutiny of their payrolls and a grievance procedure for their employes.

Taxes fund 21 Hays London trips

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Wayne L. Hays and a long-time Ohio friend have made 21 trips to London at taxpayer expense during the past nine years, the Washington Post reported Thursday. The newspaper quoted Hays as acknowledging that he got Orlan C. Ralston his position as head of the State Department's foreign buildings office in 1965. Ralston had been manager of Howell's General Store in Flushing, Ohio, where Hays rented congressional office space, the Post said.

"I make a lot of these trips. That's our business," Ralston told the Post. His office administers U.S. embassy housekeeping and budgetary affairs abroad. The newspaper said travel records show that Hays and Ralston frequently have gone on to other European capitals, but each of the 21 trips included a two-to five-day stop in London. The records show that Ralston has made only four trips abroad in the past nine years unaccompanied by Hays.

Hays made the trips as chairman of the House international operations subcommittee, which oversees the State Department budget, and as a member of the North Atlantic Assembly, a NATO parliamentary contribution Ohio's Jamestown, Va., Exposition in 1907 was a replica of "Adena," Ohio Gov. Worthington's home at Chillicothe.

NBA-ABA merger settled

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — The Chicago Bulls and the Atlanta Hawks, the National Basketball Association's worst teams last season, figured to reap the bigget benefits with the addition of four American Basketball Association clubs to the NBA for the 1976-77 campaign.

The Bulls and Hawks will have the Nos. 1 and 2 picks, respectively, in a special dispersement draft of players from the two ABA franchises - Kentucky and Utah - which were not added to the NBA Thursday, plus players remaining from the Virginia franchise which folded following the 1975-76 season.

Most likely the Bulls, who have been struggling for several years without a high-scoring center, will select 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, who led Kentucky to the ABA championship in 1975. The Hawks, also lacking a good big man, would then take 6-11 Moses Malone, who stepped right into the pros from Petersburg, Va., High School in 1974 and was an immediate sensation.

The order of selection was decided upon after the announcement of the historic merger, which will result in the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs becoming a part of the NBA next sesason, bringing the league's membership to 22.

The teams will select in the inverse order of their records for last season. Following Chicago and Atlanta will be Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York Nets, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

It will be another opportunity for the poorer to get rich, and the for the Bulls and Hawks it could not have come at a more opportune time. Chicago finished last season with a 24-58 record and Atlanta was 29-53

The Bulls began rebuilding last week when they chose 6-7 forward Scott May of Indiana, the College Player of the Year, on the first round of the NBA

The Hawks were extremely active on the trading market as the season ended, swinging two major deals. In one transaction they obtained center-forward Joe C. Meriweather and guard Gus Bailey from the Houston Rockets and in the other they acquired guard Ken Charles and forward Dick Gibbs from the Buffalo Braves for guard Tom Van Arsdale.

The date of the dispersal draft was not set but other players expected to be among the top picks are Marvin Barnes, Ron Boone, Maurice Lucas and Bird

Perhaps the two biggest losers in the the agreement will be Los Angeles and New Orleams. Both had forfieted their first-round draft choices in 1977 in a recent supplemental draft of underclassmen who have signed by the the ABA this season but were not chosen by NBA clubs. In that draft, the Lakers took Mark Olberding, a strong rebounder who now will remain with San Antonio, and the Jazz chose the highly prized Malone.

That draft was voided by the agreement between the leagues. Other major points of the agreement

-Each of the four new teams will pay the NBA $3.2 million, with $1 million due by July 1 and the remaining $2.2 million due by Sept 15.

-The new teams will not share in TV revenue for four years, will not vote on division alignment for next season and will not vote on a resolution on gate

sharing for two years. -All ABA players selected in the despersal draft will have their current contracts honored by NBA teams. -Players not chosen will have thier contracts paid by the ABA. -The New York Nets will have to pay the NBA's New York Knicks a territorial indemnity over 20 years. That indemnity was not announced, but was estimated at $6 million including interst. behind the scenes Much maneuvering went into the agreement on which both leagues have been working feverishly in recent weeks and really hammered away at during the NBA's three-day summer meeting in this Cape Cod resort community.

"There was a lot of ebb and flow, a lot of give and take," said a weary but satisfied Larry O'Brien, commissioner of the NBA. "What was decided upon was not perfection, but in something like this both sides had to yield a little and that's what happened in this case.

O'Brien said he felt all four new teams were qualified to join the NBA. "Our checkout on them was fully intensive," he explained.

While those four teams checked out well. Kentucky and Utah were not accepted because they failed to meet all proper requirements, such as solid financial backing and future potential. However, both teams will be remunerated. Kentucky will receive $3 million from the departing ABA clubs, while the payment to Utah has not been

"We wanted all six teams to go in, but it proved a big stumbling block to the NBA," said ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, who added that his future plans were uncertain beyond the next three or four months, when he hopes to complete all of the ABA's housekeeping.

The agreement still has to be approved by the ABA Players Association and agreed upon by Judge Robert Carter of Southern District Court in New York.

The players union's acceptance is expected to be a mere formality, because its counsel, Prentiss Yancey, said he felt the package was one he could recommend for passage to the

Finley had 'no alternative'

Decision expected today

NEW YORK (AP) - Oakland A's Yankees for $1.5 million after signing owner Charles O. Finley, lashing out at a baseball system that has "no stability and no permanence," said he had no alternative but to sell three of his star ballplayers because he couldn't make a trade for them.

Finley appeared with repre-sentatives of the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and player union head Marvin Miller at a hearing with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday, and said the current system of playermanagement behavior is "wrecking the sport.

In a matter of hours Tuesday, Finley sold Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each, then sent left-hander Vida Blue to the

"Clubs don't want unsigned ballplayers," he said after Thursday's hearing, referring to the fact that the three athletes sold were among seven Oakland players who had not signed contracts for the current season. "I wouldn't want one either. It was only the Red Sox and Yankees who said, We'll take these ballplayers, even if they're unsigned.'

"I didn't want to sell them. We had made every effort for two months to make trades - to no avail," said Finley, dressed in a grey plaid suit with a yellow golf shirt and matching hat.

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

One hit doesn't end a slump, but in the case of Dave Kingman, it usually ends a ballgame.

Kingman either strikes out or hits it out - and Thursday night, it was the "I'm still swinging at bad pitches,

I'm still in a slump," Kingman insisted despite a 14th-inning home run that led the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kingman's homer was his 23rd of the season, but only his first at home since

May 28. He prefers hitting on the road, obviously "I feel less pressure on the road," said Kingman, who hit his last seven shots away from Shea Stadium. "These last few days, I've been wishing we'd been on the road. Despite leading the major leagues in home runs and despite a healthy RBI figure of 50, Kingman is not happy with his season. He had hoped for more consistency than just a .240 batting average, as well as fewer strikeouts. "I have a good day and then I have a bad day," Kingman said. "I would rather be mediocre. I have been having some rather bad days lately.

Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough will remember Thursday night's blast for a while.

'It was a bad pitch, right in the zone where he wanted it, " said the knuckleballer. "It had no spin on it and it was straight. It was a knuckler.'

In the only other National League game, the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Kingman's eighth game-winning hit of the season came with one out in the 14th inning and landed in the left field bullpen. Skip Lockwood, 3-2, was the winner in relief of Craig Swan. For Hough, it was his second loss against seven victories.

"It was solid mud," said umpire-inchief Jerry Neudecker, explaining why he called off a 4-4 game between the Tigers and the Minnesota Twins in the bottom of the sixth inning Thursday night. "Sure, you could put sand on the field, but you can't put it all over the in-

Unfortunately for the Tigers, they scored their four runs in the top of the sixth. So when the proceedings were washed out with one out and two Minnesota runners aboard in the bottom of the inning, the score reverted back to the end of the fifth and a 4-0 triumph for the Twins.

The umpires' decision, after two delays totaling 94 minutes, sent Manager Ralph Houk into a shirtthrowing rage in the Detroit clubhouse.

'I don't want to talk to any censored body," he ranted. "Go talk to the censored umpires. They're the ones that censored up the game. I've played in much worse censored weather than this many censored times before. I'm going to report those censored umpires to the censored league. I've already gone in and told those censoreds myself.

'I can't blame him," Neudecker said, sympathizing with Houk but standing by his decision. "I can understand his point.'

In other American League action, the New York Yankees nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4, the Boston Red Sox trounced the Oakland A's 8-2, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Texas Rangers 4-1 and the California Angels blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0. Kansas City and Cleveland were not scheduled.

Before the rains came in Minnesota, Mike Cubbage drove in three runs for the Twins with a double and sacrifice fly. Dave Goltz was credited with a three-hit shutout, with relief help from the weatherman after being kayoed in Detroit's nonexistent four-run rally, which included a two-run homer by Aurelio Rodriguez.

"I kept looking at the leader board. It's neat to see your name on the leader board. I went out expecting to shoot an 80. Every minute I expected something to come up and bite me.'

Nothing did, so the youngster finished in the gathering dusk at the Atlanta Athletic Club with a threeunder-par 67 that gave him the firstround lead by three shots over a field of the world's best professionals in the 76th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Nobody else broke par. Instead, the opening round of golf's most prestigious event saw most of the game's elite fuming and fussing over playing conditions. A significant increase of corn yield was proven in Fayette County, last year, with the use of Dinitro. This chemical was used as a growth stimulant on 3,000 acres of test plots in our immediate area. Six years of testing by Purdue University indicates 5 per cent to 10 per cent increase in yield can be achieved with this growth stimulant, when applied at the right time. As a result, an estimated 50,000 acres in 1974 and 500,000 acres in 1975 were treated by Indiana farmers. The price is so low, $2.95 an acre including chemical and application, that you shouldn't miss this money making opportunity. Call us for information on how to determine the proper time to treat your corn. (We estimate June 21 to July 4 will be the time to start this year.)

Recess postpones Rhodes' attempt to oust Stebbins

Senate Judiciary Committee has recessed until July 6 its hearings on a request by Gov. James A. Rhodes to remove Gregory J. Stebbins from the Ohio Industrial Commission

Testimony started Thursday but dealt generally with procedural matters

Rhodes asked the Senate to use its statutory authority to dismiss Stebbins after a federal court earlier this year blocked his efforts to fire him under malfeasance and misfeasance laws.

The governor has charged that the former commission chairman, named by former Democrat Gov. John J. Gilligan, benefitted financially two years ago after a $20,000 injured worker's award was used to purchase a house in which Stebbins shared ownership.

Stebbins was replaced as chairman after Rhodes became governor in early 1975 but remained as a member of the three-member commission. He and his attorneys are fighting the dismissal effort, denying the real estate charge and several other lesser allegations Rhodes sent the committee. The committee didn't get to the real estate deal Thursday.

Most of testimony dealt with procedures used by the commission in the handling of injured workers' claims some of which involved Stebbins' actions called into question by Rhodes.

Earlier in the day, Stebbins' lawyers award. went into Franklin County Common Pleas Court and requested a temporary injunction to prohibit hearings before the judiciary committee. They said the matter should be pursued by the full Senate, not just one of its committees.

Judge Paul W. Martin declined to hear the injunction request, citing procedural reasons and saying Rhodes and committee members named in the injunction request had not been given prior notice. The Senate hearing got under way a short time later.

Although Rhodes' presented a list of 10 charges against the former chairman, they said the major allegation involved the awarding of a $20,000 lump sum settlement to a disabled client who used the money in a real estate transaction that yielded Stebbins about $6,000.

The disputed claim was filed by Mitchell M. Hizer of Columbus in November 1973. It stated that $18,000 of the $20,000 lump sum would be used to buy a home in Columbus.

Stebbins had sold the same house earlier that year to the Pickwick Holding Co. but was waiting for a final payment which was contingent on the house being resold, Rhodes has charged. Stebbins conceded received a $6,000 payment from the holding company in 1974 as the balance still due him on the house

He added however, that at the time the commission acted on Hizer's claim, he no longer held title to the property and saw nothing wrong in voting on the

bananas or other fruits that contain potassium because the chemical is poisonous to her system since her kidney's don't function. She can only have two glasses of liquid a day, but is not allowed to drink her favorite fruit drinks, which are grapefruit and orange juice, because they too contain potassium. "If I stay at my two glass quota, then I'll only gain two or three pounds a day, but if I exceed this limit, I can gain as much as six or seven pounds in a day. Once I get on the machine it eliminates this excess fluid in my body," Mrs. Winn said.

Passions such as weiners and sauerkraut and fried potatoes are forbidden by her female doctor at Christ Hospital, whom Mrs. Winn described as a "great person and wonderful kidney doctor."

Since her illness, the heat, which she loved before, has began to take its toll. Before her kidney failure, Mrs. Winn said that she loved hot weather. "The hotter the better." During previous summers she said that she was able to work best when it was hot, but now, when the heat creeps in the settles, she said that she just sits and wilts. "Last winter, when I was going to Cincinnati for my treatments, whenever I would walk out in the crisp winter air, I would inhale and think, "oh, what beautiful

A strong faith in God helped her through her ordeal. "At one time I was praying to die and to live at the same time. I didn't know which one I wanted most," Mrs. Winn said revealing the confusion she underwent. "But I know that I didn't make it through on my own. I had alot of help."

Her husband and her friends aided her tremendously. "My husband was Babe Her advice to anyone who suspects that they have kidney troubles is to see a doctor immediately. "Don't neglect your kidneys! You don't think much about them ordinarily, but when something goes wrong with them, believe me, you think about them!'

Mrs. Winn has two companions who are obviously dear to her, and whom she feared she would never see again. They are two dogs, Ginger, the "independent one", who is half scottie and half dachshund, and is funny, but cute, looking to say the least with her scottie features and weiner dog torso. The other pooch is a Manchester named Tammy, the "pushy one", who according to Mrs. Winn, only bites men, never women. "My husband said that these two dogs were his pals while I was sick and in the hospital. It would have been difficult for him to get through it all without the company of Ginger and Tammy." Mrs. Winn snuggled with her two pooches, who were allowed to sit in the living room during the interview, which was apparently a treat for them. She calls the two female dogs "old grannies" because neither one of them has ever had a litter of pups. "The dogs have been happy since I came home.

A lifetime dependent on the "monher kidney machine, is something that Mrs. Winn accepts. "I've had a good life and I was always a hard worker. The worst thing about my illness is that I'm no longer able to work like I did before."

The interview ended and Mrs. Winn prepared her two dogs for a walk outside, acting as if she'd never had a sick day in her life.

According to Fayette County sheriff's deputies, a pickup truck driven by John R. Glasscock, 27, of Jeffersonville, had reportedly landed in a ditch along Ohio 41-N, just north of Miami Trace High School during the early hours of Friday.

Upon arrival at the scene, sheriff's deputies found that the pickup truck had left the accident scene. Deputies continued onward to I-71, where they discovered a truck matching the description of the one being sought.

The pickup truck failed to pull over at the sound of the cruiser's siren, and was pursued through the village limits of Jeffersonville. After a chase through the back streets of Jeffersonville, Glasscock was apprehended, had to be physically taken to the sheriff's cruiser, and reportedly used abusive language throughout his apprehension. Over 'acts of tyranny'

City Council objects to paid advertisement

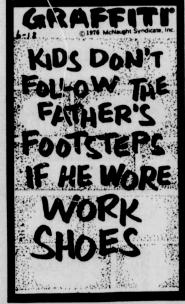

Washington C.H. City Council members have issued a joint statement denying allegations of "acts of tyranny" which appeared recently in a paid advertisement in the Record-Herald signed by Sam B. Marting, president of the Marting Manufacturing Co., 809 Delaware St

Released shortly after 11 a.m. Friday, the statement was signed by six of the seven City Council members. Council member Billie Wilson, who has repeatedly opposed income tax measures (the focal point of the "tyranny,") was asked to sign but reportedly refused.

Council chairman Joseph O'Brien delivered the document to City Manager George H. Shapter Friday morning.

The city manager said there has been a constant flow of half-truths and false statements from City Council critics, and the public needs to be made aware of the facts pertaining to these inac-

Marting's letter said that repeated passage of city income tax ordinances was an example of "taxation without representation," that persons arrested for alleged violations of law were taken from their homes "in the dead of the cessive," and that the defendants were being "denied a jury of their peers." The statement issued by City Council responded to each accusation individually.

"We, the members of City Council, are the duly elected representatives of this city. We are charged by our office to see that the City is run in an orderly and efficient manner for the benefit of all residents. This we are attempting to do," the six Council members said. Council further stated that those who circulated petitions for repeal of the tax were not treated as traitors as Marting alleged but only as persons "who have made sworn statements which are, in In response to claims that the arrests were made in "the dead of night,"

Council members stated that police records show the five arrests occurred between 2:30 and 6 p.m. In each of the cases, bond was established at $500. During discussions prior to issuing the statement, O'Brien reportedly said that when he was accused of assault after a public hearing, his bond was placed at $1,000. He posted a 10 per cent cash bond, or $100.

Four of the five defendants obtained bondsmen, and the court received no cash, the statement adds

The decision to have the trial moved to Circleville was not made by Council, but by Acting Judge John P. Case. "We are the legislative branch of the government-not the judicial-and as such, do not interfere in judicial affairs," the Council members said.

"If Mr. Marting has contempt for this due process of law, let him direct his contempt elsewhere, than at Council," they stated.

'Mr. Marting further suggest (sic) a 'revolution—not of guns but one to rid us of tyranny.' We suggest that the citizens of this city have suffered long enough by false statements made by an irresponsible group seeking to serve their own interests at the expense of the resident taxpayers of this community.

"We, therefore, issue this statement and vow that in each and every instance whereby false or misleading information is disseminated in an 'anti-city government' effort, we shall respond with the truth as verified by the records," the statement concluded.

safer exit route if evacuation became necessary. And many of the Americans for months have resisted the Embassy's urging that they leave, because they are of Lebanese birth, have dual citizenship and don't want to leave their native land.

The State Department announced early today that "due to the continuing uncertainty of the situation in Beirut, the President has directed the U.S. Embassy there to organize a departure of an overland convoy of those U.S. citizens who wish to depart at this

A State Department spokesman said the U.S. Embassy would remain open and "only those Embassy officials not essential to our continuing operations" would leave. The Embassy staff has already been cut to 53 Americans.

The word from Washington was received at the Beirut Embassy as its staff was busy arranging to send the bodies of Meloy and Waring to Damascus to be flown from there to Washington. Embassy officials could give no information about their plans for American evacuees, and it was obvious that the first available transportation out for anyone wanting to go would be the convoy of about 50 buses the British Embassy was organizing for Saturday.

A British official said about 600 Britons were expected to take the convoy. This would leave places for about 1,100 other foreigners. The buses will be escorted from Beirut to Sidon, 25 miles south of the capital, by Palestinian troops. Syrian troops will

It was readily apparent to the eyes and nose of a passerby that something was fishy at Rock Bridge in southern Fayette County Thursday afternoon. Located along the banks and shallow weather cause a build up in the algae population of creeks and ponds. When skies are predominately overcast, as they have been recently, Cremeans noted that algae will die.

During their decomposition, they use 10 times as much oxygen as during their life sustaining processes, he said. Compounded with the toxic substances of sewage amounts present in the water, the low oxygen level in the water is sufficient to kill much of the fish in various areas of Paint Creek, Cremeans stated. He added that in his

six and a half years in Fayette County, he has seen a similar fish kill at least five times in the Rock Bridge area.

If the dead fish are the result of a low water oxygen content brought on by algae decomposition, Cremeans said that grazing livestock in pasturland bordering the creek would not be harmed by drinking the water.

Just how much toxicity is present within the water flowing through Paint Creek can only be determined with the analyzation of water samples taken, Cremeans stated.

Johannesburg remains battleground

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Rioting broke out today in at least seven more black townships and other parts of South Africa in the third day of an uprising in which at least 58 persons have been killed and 788

Police said general calm was restored to the big Soweto township, the battleground Wednesday and Thursday, but violence erupted in other black enclaves.

The South African Press Association reported that police opened fire to disperse a mob of blacks, mostly young people, at Alexandra, a shantytown just north of Johannesburg. The shooting began when rioters set fire to at least a dozen vehicles, the report said. There was no word on casualties.

About 3,000 blacks went on a rampage at Vosloorus township, about 15 miles southeast of Johannesburg, and set four buses and a beer hall ablaze. At nearby Natalspruit, rioters stoned passing cars and set fire to buses.

Two government employes were trapped inside a brewery near the outskirts of the white city of Germiston, also near Vosloorus. Police armed with automatic rifles set up roadblocks around Vosloorus, and one police officer said the mood of the crowd was arrested. They gave no racial breakdown, but presumably all or most of them were black.

Police said all but two of the dead and five of the injured were black. The South African Press Association said there were 61 dead.

It was the worst black uprising in white-ruled South Africa since police gunfire killed 69 Africans protesting laws requiring them to carry passes at Sharpeville on March 21, 1960. As peace returned to Soweto, thousands of black commuters jammed buses and trains to their jobs in Johannesburg. But smoke was still rising from some of the dozens of buildings set ablaze by the thousands of rioters in an uncontrolled rampage of looting and violence.

The rioting began Wednesday when police attempted to stop a demonstration by 10,000 black students protesting the mandatory use of the Afrikaans language in schools. On Thursday, it spread to another black ghetto, affected Johannesburg itself and took on the character of a general uprising against South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation and repression.

Afrikaans is the Dutch-derived language of the South African Boers, the dominant group in the 4-millionstrong white minority and the authors of apartheid. To many of the nation's 18 million blacks, the language symbolizes white oppression, and the students also prefer English because it

Saturday, July 3. The speedy and graceful Warfield signed a contract with Cleveland in April and will rejoin the Browns following a five-year absence for the 1976 season. He started his professional football career with the Browns in 1964.

Warfield played the first six of his 11 years in the National Football League in a Cleveland uniform and was an outstanding performer. He caught 52 passes as a rookie and his 1,067 yards in 1968 still constitutes a Cleveland record.

In early 1970, Warfield was traded to Miami for the Dolphins' top draft choice, a trade that brought quarterback Mike Phipps to Cleveland. He continued to star at Miami during five seasons where he matched his Clevveland feat of being chosen as an All-Pro three different years. He has played in the Pro Bowl game seven times in his 11-year National Football League career.

A native of Warren, Ohio, Warfield participated in football, basketball and track at Warren Harding High School and rejected several major league baseball offers to attend Ohio State University. Crime increases in 4 communities

Cincinnati, Cleveland and Dayton each recorded declines in total crime during the first three months of 1376. while Akron, Canton, Columbus, Parma and Youngstown recorded increases, the FBI said Thursday.

Youngstown topped the list with a 32.2 per cent increase in its total crime index, including a 78.6 per cent increase in aggravated assaults. Youngstown's crime increase was more than double that of the second ranked city.

The statistics were included in the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, released Thursday. The report covers the first quarter of 1976 and compares crime figures with the first three

Nationally, serious crime increased 4 per cent during the quarter, compared with an 18 per cent increase in the first quarter last year, the FBI said.

Violent crimes dropped 7 per cent, but property crimes increased 5 percent, including a 14 per cent increase in larceny-theft.

Of the eight Ohio cities included in the statistics, all above 100,000 population, all reported declining or unchanged murder rates and most reported declines in rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Exceptions were Canton and Youngstown.

In property crimes, the eight Ohio cities generally reported declines in burglary-except for jumps in Parma and Youngstown-and increases in larceny-theft. Declines in auto theft rates were recorded in six cities, but Akron and Youngstown posted increases.

Youngstown's murder rate was unchanged, with eight murders reported in each quarter. Its forcible rape rate was up 9.1 per cent, but that represented only an increase from 11 reported rapes in the first quarter of 1975 to 12 in 1976.

But Youngstown also reported a 45.6 per cent increase in burglaries, a 31.4 per cent increase in larceny-thefts, an 11 per cent increase in auto theft and a 9.2 per cent increase in robberies.

In contrast, Cleveland reported an overall crime decrease of 2.9 per cent. Murder dropped 16.9 per cent, rape 10.5 per cent, robbery 26.3 per cent and aggravated assault 19.7 per cent. Cleveland's only reported increase was in larceny-theft, up 14.7 per cent.

In other overall crime rates, Akron reported a 6.5 per cent increase, Canton a 7.1 per cent increase, Cincinnati a 3.1 per cent decrease and Columbus a 4.8 per cent increase.

Antirecession tax cuts may continue

WASHINGTON (AP) - After tentatively refusing to wipe out a series of tax breaks for wealthy investors, the Senate appears ready to extend all of last year's individual tax cuts for another 15 months.

A vote on continuing the tax reductions could come today.

The series of antirecession tax cuts enacted last year — amounting to about $180 a year for a typical family of four are due to expire July 1. That would mean withholding rates would go up

There has never been any doubt in Congress that the reductions would be extended. The only question was for how long.

The Finance Committee, as part of a broad tax bill now being debated by the full Senate, voted to make half the tax cuts permanent while allowing the remainder to expire June 30, 1977.

This was to save the government money and to allow the next president and the new Congress to see how the economy is faring a year from now before deciding whether the entire package should be made permanent.

The Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., coupled that decision with a vote to end $1 billion in tax loopholes in 1977. In so acting, the panel rejected two recommendations of the new Budget Committee headed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine. Muskie's committee suggested a full extension of the tax cut for 15 months three months more than Long's panel approved — and called for closing $2 billion worth of loopholes.

Muskie moved Thursday night to extend the tax cut for the full 15 months. Long promptly charged that Muskie was trying to "bust the budget"

of his own Budget Committee.

Muskie insisted the full tax cut was recommended by his committee and endorsed earlier this year by Congress.

Unless the full tax cut is extended, said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., middle-income families would face a tax increase a year from now, even while wealthy Americans were enjoying tax benefits approved by the Finance Committee.

Despite a 46-33 loss Thursday night. liberals are planning a second effort to reduce tax shelters that benefit persons the 50-per-cent-or-higher tax brackets. If the liberals lose again, the Senate is likely to approve a Finance Committee package that reduces the benefits from tax shelters but does not cut them out altogether.

Kennedy and other liberals indicated they expect to win a second vote on eliminating the tax shelters.

Court protects silence without discreditation

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Supreme Court ruling protects the right of criminal suspects in police custody to remain silent without having their silence used to discredit testimony given in court.

The court ruled 6 to 3 that the right to remain silent carries such protection. In another criminal law decision, the court ruled 7 to 2 that a defendant must be told all of the elements of the crime he is charged with before a judge can accept a guilty plea from him.

Judge John Paul Stevens wrote for the majority in that case. Justice William Rehnquist and Chief Justice Warren Burger, dissented, arguing that the decision "opens the door to countless...prisoners to withdraw their guilty pleas many years after they are

Mrs. Wilbur Ryan and family Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gales and family People's prosecutor Rui Monteiro declared in a three-hour summation. Robert Cesner, a Midwest attorney arguing to save two Vietnam veterans from execution, pleaded the Geneva Convention today in defense of all the mercenaries and blamed the FBI for allowing Gary Acker to sign on.

"If Acker was permitted by the FBI to come here, how was he to know it was wrong?" demanded the attorney from Columbus, Ohio, in an hour and 15 minute summing up argument.

Cesner's defense was to agree with the prosecutor in placing the blame on international organizations behind mercenaries. He said tahe the FBI agent who calleed on Acker after he appeared on TV with a mercenary recruiter "gave the appearance of legitimacy to his ill-fated adventure."

Monteiro denounced Britain, the United States, "decadent Western society" and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in his speech before the Revolutionary People's tribunal.

American, British and courtappointed Angolan defense attorneys summarize their cases today.

The prosecution acknowledged there were few eyewitnesses to the murder and pillage allegedly committed by the mercenaries. Only four of 10 government witnesses singled of mercenaries as responsible for killings they claimed to have witnessed.
"It is impossible for the people to identify individual mercenaries," the prosecution contended. "We don't consider them prisoners of war. They are outside the law," Monteiro boomed into the microphone. 'For their grave crimes against the Angolan people, they can only be punished by death by shooting."

He did not cite any specific crimes charged against the mercenaries. "Their major crime," he said, "is the crime of mercenarism.

The Americans on trial are Daniel Gearhart of Kensington, Md., Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., and Gustave Grillo of Jersey City, N.J. They and the Britons fought for a Western-backed faction that was defeated in the civil war by a Marxist group, the Popular Movement.

Monteiro accused the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Britain, Zaire and South Africa of complicity in hiring "professional murderers in the pay of imperialism with dollars tainted with the blood of our people.'

to support 5 tax defendants By GEORGE MALEK Country and western music and free door prizes will be used Sunday to attract attention to the cause of five

Washington C.H. residents charged with election law violations. The purpose of a jamboree in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds is to promote the defense of the five defendants. Free will offerings will be taken throughout the day. The proceeds will be used to cover legal fees of the defendants.

Door prizes for the event have been supplied by sympathetic Washington C.H. area merchants, but some apparently misunderstood the cause to which they were contributing.

Because the issue is a political "hot potato" in Washington C.H., some of the merchants who contributed have asked that their names be withdrawn from the list of promoters.

Organized by Mrs. Richard Allen, 401
W. Elm St., the jamboree will feature six hours of country and western music. Performers include Eddie Adams, Joe D. Shannon, Billie Shirrell and the Zugg Brothers Co.

Entertainment will begin at 2 p.m. and continue until 8 p.m. Mrs. Allen said each of the recording artists has donated his time because of a belief in the jamboree's purpose.

Speaking during the afternoon will be William F. Stolzenburg Sr., 804 Maple St., the most widely known of the defendant's in the case, and former Washington City Council member John

E. Rhoads. Stolzenburg and three others were arrested in April for alleged violation of election laws when they circulated petitions for the repeal of a now-defunct city income tax ordinance.

Each was charged with attesting to signatures on their petitions which had not been signed by the person whose name appeared on the document. City administration officials say most of the irregularities were instances where a husband or wife signed for his or her

The fifth defendant in the case, the Rev. C.H. Detty, a self-ordained Washington C.H. minister, allegedly signed the name of a member of his household who is no relation.

All five are to appear in Circleville Municipal Court in August to stand trial. Acting Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge John P. Case transferred the hearing to Circleville stating that an impartial jury could not be selected here.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson recently announced the appointment of a new cook and jail matron of the Fayette County jail.

The new cook-matron is Mrs. Evelyn McCoy and she replaces Mrs. Inez Dray, who retired May 14 after 10 years of service in that position.

Mrs. Dray was honored Thursday night with a special farewell banquet held by members of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The bill reads in part: "No state maintain the status or compensation of official or state employe shall use or that employe.

prompted the jamboree. These alleged injustices include not only the prosecution of those involved in circulating the petitions, but in the imposition of the city income tax as well.

The committee will have petitions for repeal of the current one-half per cent income tax at the Mahan Building throughout the day.

There will also be petitions seeking a vote to change from the managercouncil form of government to a mayor

The 1975 city income tax (which was a full one per cent) was removed after Washington C.H. residents voted two to one for its repeal. A vote on the form of government upheld the present system. Slightly more than 56 per cent of the voters favored retention.

Mrs. Allen said she expects a good turnout and strong showing of op-position to both the tax and the form of government. She also feels the people will express their opposition to the injustices the defendants are allegedly suffering

Mrs. Allen noted, however, that she wants a fair appraisal of how city residents feel. She said she would have sheets available for signatures of those who wish to express support of the tax or the present government form.

Because the purpose of the meeting is to promote the defense of individuals who opposed the tax and form of government, however, she expects the majority of those attending will have similar attitudes.

AREA MERCHANTS donated door door prizes to be given away free during the afternoon. More than 60 contributed.

Difficulty arose when some of the merchants realized that they had been contacted by the Citizens Defense Fund Committee, not the "Civil Defense Fund Committee.

The obvious similarity of words created quite a stir, most of which appears to fall on businessmen who minunderstood what was said. Mrs. Allen insists that she distinctly said "Citizens Defense" to all mer-chants she approached for donations. She said she had asked for a contribution and added that she would provide free advertising if the merchant so desired.

In most cases, the merchants were happy to have their names used in advertising, she said. Mrs. Allen added that she gave a receipt to each business for its cash or merchandise and noted on the receipt whether or not they wanted the company name used in advertisement. Under her signature, she said, she abreviated the committee

name by using "CDF."

When posters appeared promoting the defense jamboree, several merchants were apparently surprised to see their names included.

Seven of the 60 donors asked that their names be removed from a paid advertisement scheduled to appear in Friday's edition of the Record-Herald.

Dismayed to hear that the misunderstanding had arisen, Mrs. Allen contacted each of the merchants. In most cases, she said, the businessmen merely felt the issue was too controversial to become involved.

A few merchants said they had not realized the purpose of the meeting. Only one asked to have his contribution returned, Mrs. Allen said.

She added that she had apologized to each merchant for the error and offered a public denial of their support. None asked for such a public statement, Mrs. Allen stressed.
Although Richard Kilian, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, and Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott received several inquiries from merchants concerning solicitations for the jamboree, no formal complaints were filed in either office.

A denial of the franchise

As we head toward another presidential election it can be confidently predicted that a multitude of Americans will be denied their right to vote. The distrubing fact is that over-stingent residency laws assure this.

As always, various other circumstances will cut down on the number who exercise the franchise. Many people who are on the road, or institutionalized, or otherwise unable to get to the polls. will not help choose the next president. Even indifference will take its toll. Especially aggravating, though, is denial of the franchise because a voter has not lived long enough in this or that place to be registered for the election. It is a situation that

According to the most recent "insider" count, 30 of the Connecticut delegates will be in Ford's corner, leaving five for Reagan. If a recent Human Events projection - that Reagan would win in the convention by seven votes - is anywhere near the mark, five Reagan supporters in a generally hostile Northeastern state could make all the difference.

the Republican nod and faces an ebullient Jimmy Carter in the November finale, it will be a naked test between the old "Eastern establishment" and what Kirkpatrick Sale, the sarcastic author of "Power Shift: The Rise of the Southern Rim" calls "cowboy" and "rimster" power. The odds in such a confrontation would favor a Carter victory. The Georgia peanut farmer's performance in the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois primaries has been far more impressive than Jerry Ford's few Southern victories in Florida, Kentucky and Tennessee.

If the Republicans have been counting on the older Democratic power structures to sabotage a Southerner, they are behind the times. Carter is not a wholly new phenomenon; after all, George Wallace had disadvantages among the black voters that Carter will not have

If the Republicans go with Reagan, the struggle between the "Eastern establishment" and "cowboy power" will be blurred. The Ripon Society, which is the voice of the so-called liberal Republicans (Rockefeller, Javits, Case), has warned that a Reagan convention victory will 'McGovernize" the Republican Party. Maybe the wish would prove farther to reality in some of the Northeastern states. If disgruntled Republican liberals were to cut Reagan in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, we might be treated to the strange spectacle of a Southern Democrat sweeping the

But, to balance this possibility, Reagan would hardly prove to be a 'McGovern" in California and Texas, which have the electoral college strength to counter possible losses in Pennsylvania and New York. Reagan, from southern California, represents "rimster" and "cowboy power" even more than Carter, who had difficulties in Western primaries that he never encountered in his own Deep South.

Just as a baseball team, if it is to be a contender, must have a third baseman who can "go to his left," the Republicans need a candidate or candidates who can go to the South and West. If Ford is the Republican nominee he will need the 100 per cent support of the Reaganites who have given Ron his majorities in Southern and Western primaries. Unfortunately for Ford, many of these happen to be Something might be done to lure them into a permanent switch if Reagan were to be named the vice presidential candidate on a Ford Ticket. But would a victorious Ford have a free hand to take Reagan as a running mate? Those "uncommitted" delegates who went to Ford at Nelson Rockefeller's behest may hold the key to a mystery. Were they delivered without a prior understanding about the vice presidency?

A Jerry Ford who is beholden to Rockefeller may, despite the Ripon Society, turn out to be the "McGovern"

of the Republican Party.
Whatever happens at the Republican convention, there must be a special effort made to placate the South and the West. Northestern Rpublicanism can no longer do it alone.

Law should settle rate controversy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Fly-bynight wig salesmen who operate out of rented hotel salons and elsewhere can be nailed for barbering or practicing cosmetology without a license under new Ohio statutes which become effective at midnight tonight.

Two bills by Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, and others, don't affect wig shops and department stores, unless they actually perform fittings for hair pieces. "It doesn't affect across the counter sales," said Edwin C. Jeffers, executive secretary of the Ohio State Board of Barber Examiners.

Meshel's companion bills provide the first major revisions in state barber and beauty shop laws in several years. They include modest fee increases for practitioners and update training qualifications. But they also make changes geared more to helping the professional public than housekeeping.

Jeffers said the problem of illegal wig fitters has become serious in Ohio. "You know, of course, that hair pieces have become a big business all across the country," he said, adding "some guy can check into a hotal, stay there a day, rip off his customers, and be out of town the next day."

Under the new law, he said, "we can get him for breaking the law. We couldn't touch him the way it has been up to now." The fitting of wigs demands regulation, he said, because of sanitation and sterilization required with putting clamps into the skin.

Another change made by Meshel's legislation is a requirement of shop licenses for the first time; $25 for the initial license and inspection and $3 a year thereafter. The license was requested because unlicensed shop owners, whose numbers are on the increase, are able to escape enforcement of regulations. Jeffers explained the board has been powerless to act because the owners of shops have not had licenses that could be suspended or revoked for failure to meet sanitary and other requirements.

Other changes in the laws grant reciprocity to licensed barbers and cosmetologists in other states who move into Ohio, and permit reductions in training requirements for persons deciding to leave one of the professions to enter the other.

Under new provisions, a cosmetologist who wanted to become a barber, or a barber electing to become a cosmetologist, could make the change after only 1,000 hours of training. Beginning barbers must have 1,800 hours of training while persons en-tering cosmetology must have 1,500.

Ohio has about 15,000 licensed barbers and about 100,000 cosmetologists. although Jeffers said there is a large turnover in the latter because many persons who enter cosmetology at the 10th grade level in vocational schools decide later they want to do something else. Ohio's vocational schools don't include barbering in their curricula.

Dear Abby:

Daughters 'trapped'

by elderly mother

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 88 and lives with my sister. Every time my sister wants to take a trip, my mother insists that I stay with her. The problem is that it is not always convenient for me, but she absolutely refuses to have a "sitter," as she calls

Mother has over half a million dollars in the bank and investments that pay her a very handsome steady income, so she can well afford a live-in companion.

When we (her daughters) were growing up, she was far from a loving mother. She used to abuse us, physically and verbally, so we have very little love for her. (How could we

My husband resents the fact that we are not free to make plans. We are both retired and have ample income, so Mama's inheritance means nothing to us. We just want to live our own lives. Please help.

TRAPPED DEAR TRAPPED: Why are you trapped? If you feel that your mother's demands are unreasonable, tell her so. And if she disinherits you, she disinherits you! There is no price tag on your independence, unless you yourself place one there.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and now planning my wedding. I have three older sisters who are all married. The eldest is 27.

My problem is that I can't afford to have more than four attendants.

Everyone in my family (especially my mother) has been pressuring me to have my sisters in the wedding party, or at least to have my oldest sister as my matron of honor.

I love my sisters very much, and don't want to hurt them,, but I think a wedding is the time to show friends how much you think of them. My sisters already know how much I care for

Also, my friends are much prettier and can add more class to my wedding than my siters can. Is there anything wrong with my feeling this way? WEDDING PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: If you really want to show "class" ask your eldest sister to be your matron of honor and your other two sisters to be bridesmaids. And select one friend to show her how much you care for her.

DEAR ABBY: IOWAN wrote: "The man who wanted to sue his parents for having circumcised him as an infant is lucky he wasn't living in the 18th century. In those days they castrated young males to combine the power of the adult male singer with the high range of the female alto or soprano.

You replied, "That's news to me." Abby, in my teens, I heard one such singer. He was called a "castrato," and it was common knowledge how the effect was created.

I have been singing for about 75 years, but when I was a lad in my teens and had just started taking voice lessons, the Vatican choir came to my town on tour. One of its members was a portly man in his middle years who sang with a pure soprano voice and again, everybody knew how he could do

I was told that he was one of the last to have had the castration operation before it was outlawed.

-the illustrated bible Joseph Sold to Potiphar

And the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh's, and captain of the guard. -Genesis 37: 36

Joseph, the eleventh and youngest son of Jacob, was his father's favorite, much to the envy of his brothers. And when Jacob made the lad a coat of many colors, such as they had never seen, their hatred was intensified. In time they plotted to kill him but Reuben, the eldest, dissuaded them. So, instead, they stripped him of his coat and threw him into a waterless pit, intending to leave him to the mercy of wild beasts. Almost immediately, however, they spied a band of Midianites and, inspired by greed, sold their brother for twenty pieces of silver. Joseph was brought to Egypt and sold again-to Potiphar, an officer in the Pharaoh's guard. His brothers, meanwhile, had dipped Joseph's coat into the blood of a kid and sent it to Jacob who, believing his son was dead, grieved

Candidate should be man of faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - To use religion as "a tool" to curry public favor is a fraud, says the sister of Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter. But it is very important that the candidate be a man of faith." Ruth Carter Stapleton was talking about the relationship of political life and personal convictions, an area highlighted in the current presidential race by her brother's forthright assertions of Christian commitment.

Such commitment "strengthens a person's life to bring honesty and integrity into whatever they're doing, whether it's running a grocery store, carrying a baby or being president," she said in an interview.

"You can't separate a person's spiritual life from other things they do. It's part of everyday living. It's what a person is." At the same time, she said, faith is a 'very private thing, the most private

"All through the country, there's a yearning for these standards of leadership," she said. "We've come to a place of terrible disintegration of moral principles and values.

Publication of sea scrolls sought

By MARCUS ELIASON Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) - Scholars are awaiting publication this year of what they feel may be one of the most important Dead Sea Scrolls ever found. The so-called "Temple Scroll" is expected to throw new light on life in the Holy Land around Christ's time. The scroll is being deciphered by an Israeli archeologist, Prof. Yigael Yadin, who has been associated with the scrolls since they first were discovered in 1947 and were proclaimed the greatest find in the annals of

Biblical history. Yadin purchased the "Temple Scroll" from an Arab merchant in Bethlehem in 1967. The merchant had previously bought the scroll from Bedouin tribesmen who found it in a cave. From his archeological sources Yadin learned the merchant had the scroll and as soon as Israeli forces moved into Bethlehem in the 1967 Middle East war, he went there to bargain and make the purchase. Yadin has disclosed some section of it which illuminate in detail the Ten Commandments and the 603 Biblical orders on Jewish custom that are attached to them. The scroll also carries exact specifications for the building of the great Jewish temple in Jerusalem. The entire work will be published in English and Hebrew by the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and, in the words of one expert, will provide "dramatic new data" on the Essenes, the ascetic Jewish community that lived on the shores of the Dead Sea 20 miles east of Jerusalem and wrote the scrolls, which remained hidden for about 20

centuries The hiding places were chosen by the author, a monkish Jewish sect who fled the increasingly secular atmosphere of Jerusalem for the brooding silence and moon-like landscape of Qumran, on the Dead Sea. Here they penned copies of the Jewish Torah, books of the prophets. commentaries on the Bible and works on Jewish customs and codes.

The Bible texts were the earliest known copies of the holy book, and in most cases were remarkably similar to the translations written centuries later and adopted by Judaism and Christianity.

MANSION HOUSE—The mansion house at Adena, located off Ohio 104 at the west end of Allen Ave., Chillicothe, was visited by members of the Posy Garden Club and guests this week.

Adena, famed mansion house visited by Posy Garden Club

Six members of the Posy Garden Club and two guests motored to Chillicothe to visit Adena, a 14 room mansion house built of sandstone in 1807, by Thomas Worthington, the sixth governor of Ohio.

After the an enjoyable luncheon at the Happy Harvester at Carlisle Center in downtown Chillicothe, the afternoon was spent touring the mansion, gar-dens and other buildings. Costumed guides were on hand to answer questions and offer information concerning the gracious home of the Worthingtons. They lived an aristocratic life and Adena played host to President Monroe and many other notables of the time.

Mrs. Kennetah Campbell, who planned the rout, led the walk through the gardens. She named many of the 200 varieties of trees, bushes and flowers. Especially interesting was the 'pleached alee" as tree shaded arbor of European hornbeam, which leads to the formal garden. In the center of the garden is a white cedar, the original brought from her home in Virginia, by Mrs. Worthington. This tree was replaced in 1970 by one of equal size. Also unusual are the old knobby catalpa trees and a grafted pear tree planted by the oldest son, James T. Worthington. Worthington. Godreid Fink, a German immigrant, laid out the garden in 1815. Many flowers were brought from Virginia to supplement the native plants. The gardens were restored in 1953 when the Ohio Historical Society first acquired the

'Game' dramatizes energy problems

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — With just a flick of the switch, you too can form your own oil cartel, monopolize the world's supply or build your own nuclear reactor

It's done with Dr. Bryan Valett's Energy-Environment Simulator, an analog computer that allows any one the chance to control production and use of all energy sources.

"They can do most anything they choose," said Valett. "We had one group one time declare war and in about 20 years all the resources were gone because everyone had tooled up for war."

Since the simulators cost around $2,200 apiece, Valett doesn't expect them to become a 21st-centrury version of the "Monopoly" game, but in the past eight months some 32,000 persons have taken part in Valett's program to dramatize energy shortages. He expects the total to reach 60,000 by the end of this year after another 40 simulators are built.

"It's a generator of discussions," says Valett. "Many people are suspicious whether an energy progrim truly exists. And many who believe it complain. Then why doesn't somebody do something about it?"

Valett is director of the Northwest College and University Association for Science (NORCUS), formed in 1963 at the Joint Center for Graduate Study to bring college faculty members to the nuclear energy facilities at Hanford for research projects.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration has granted $125,000 to NORCUS to train personnel and to provide schools and organizations throughout the 22 western states with the simulator program.

"The program is a participation program by the audience. They actually get on to the machine," said Valett. The audience is divided into six groups, each having a control panel hooked up to the computer

"Each unit controls one-sixth of the world's energy supply," he said. "The decisions they make affect what happens to each group. They must live with the decision they make.

"IF they choose to produce more oil, or mine more coal, they have to discuss the consequences. There is a section on resource and development that allows them to develop new technology. But if they turn that button up they have to wait 10 years for any reserve to come out of the technology section because it takes about that long.'

When Valett and design engineer Don Frame first tried to put together some kind of program to increase public awareness, they built a Rube Goldberg kind of hydraulic device using buckets of coal.

As the coal dropped into small and smaller containers it would demonstrate the inefficiencies in the system.

"It was dramatic all right—but messy," says NORCUS associate director Dr. John Yegge. They then decided an electronic model would be more flexible-"and there wouldn't be anything to mop up afterward."

The first simulator-with complex dials, flasing lights and warning buzzers — took 17 days and $5,000 to build. The one in use now, with lap control boards to hand out to the audience, was designed by Dr. John Amend of Montana State University.

Valett has the parts manufactured eleswhere and the simulators are put together in workshops where the people who will present the programs are

Ford to promote Akron man

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford announced Thursday he plans to promote Thomas L. Lias of Akron, Ohio, to be an assistant secretary of health, education and welfare with responsibilities in the area of legislation.

Lias, 41, has been a special assistant to the HEW secretary since last December for external affairs.

If approved by the Senate, he will succeed Stephen Kurzman who has resigned effective July 2. Before coming to HEW Lias had been an executive assistant to the chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1973 and was with the American Petroleum Institute from 1974-75 in a job involving federal relations.

'House' wives regulars at legislature

Farnham and Dottie Birt don't vote. But they know more about the legislature, and have attendance records that are better, than some who are elected to serve.

The wives of two Republican state representatives have missed only a handful of days of a recent special session and have sat patiently through hours of debate, party caucuses and public hearings

They are familiar faces in the back row of the House gallery. Below them, separated by two seats, are their husbands, Roderick E. Farnham of Hampden and Walter A. Birt of East Millinocket.

Mrs. Birt has accompanied her husband to Augusta almost every day for the 14 years he has served in the Legislature, while Mrs. Farnham says she has missed few days during the six years her husband has been in the

"You conidn't keep us away," said Mrs. Birt. "We just love it."

Both women, who spend a con-siderable amount of their time together in Augusta, are the core of a small group of legislators' wives who accompany their husbands to the State wives now attend the sessions on a regular basis. They are older women who no longer have the responsibility of children. The wives and husbands of younger legislators often stay for short

In the capital, they live in a motel with their husbands throughout the session, traveling home on weekends

"Its's really a treat after all these years. No housekeeping, no cooking,' said Mrs. Farnham, who said she delights in the freedom whe finds in Augusta.

The two women breakfast together and are on hand for the opening of the session every morning. They lunch with their husbands or other wives and return fo afternoon sessions or public

If their husbands have bills to introduce at committee hearings, they go along. Otherwise they'll pick what looks like the most interesting bill on the calendar and go to that hearing.

Mrs. Farnham said she sometimes skipped hearings before her husband's State Government Committee because they were often dull.

During breaks in the legislative action, they act as unofficial tour guides for visiting friends or relatives, Ineir number has dwindled over the or spend afternoons in area antique last several years, and only about six shops.

Columbus sees late ruling as desegregation trial ends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - "Well, we've reached a milestone," U.S. District Judge Robert Duncan said Thursday after lawyers in the Columbus school desegregation suit agreed their cases were complete. The judge then recessed the court and retired to his chambers, where he told reporters: "It's going to be the toughest decision I've ever been called on to make.

"It's a matter of enormous community importance...we're dealing with the most valuable thing we have and that's our children.

Duncan indicated it will be near the end of the year, perhaps in November, before he announces a ruling on whether the city's schools are unconstitutionally segregated.

Duncan said he will try to work every day on the case, reviewing the law, analyzing the facts, resolving conflicts in evidence en route to producing a

The judge announced that both sides in the case will be required to file proposed findings of facts and law by

Aug. 2. Reply briefs will be due Aug. 16, he said, and final arguments will begin Sept. 3.

Duncan said it will take him a minimum of two months after final arguments to reach a decision. "But I'd hate to be bound by that," he added, explaining it is a task that must be done carefully. He noted that the nine-week trial lasted longer than predicted, but said the judicial process moves at a slow deliberate pace.

Duncan said the community should 'expect that the case be handled carefully and dispassionately" with adherence to the fundamentals that the system provides.

He said the community also should understand that the court is well aware of the significance of "this kind of litigation and its gross importance to the community.'

The opposing lawyers expressed confidence of victory.

Louis Lucas of the NAACP legal team termed the evidence "stronger than in other similar suits."

Despite the hours of debate on the state employe pay issue, both women said the most interesting issue before the special session was school funding, a problem which took up much of the first half of the session. As a retired teacher, Mrs. Farnham said she had a particular interest in the bill.

From their vantage point, the highest seats in the House, the two wives carefully follow and record the House action. On occasion, when a reporter has missed a critical vote Mrs. Birt has helped out. Her seat is a few steps away from the fourth floor newsrooms.

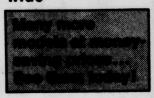

After hours, Mrs. Birt said she and her husband discuss the day's political action. She, like Mrs. Farnham, accompanies her husband to many

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer NEW YORK (AP) - In late August, Jim Hartz will turn over the studio end of hosting NBC's "Today" show to Tom Brokaw and go on the road as what NBC calls the "travelling co-host" of the two-hour program.

In some circles, this is called a massive shakeup, as the show, suffering ratings sag and the much-publicized adios of Barbara Walters, tries to refurbish its appearance and get those ratings up and viewers back.

For Hartz, co-host of "Today" almost two years, it's one of the hazards of the job. But he says it's also the chance to do something he's wanted to do knock around the United States doing for "Today" the kind of human interest stories the late Ernie Pyle did for newspapers in the 1930s. Hartz, 36, is no stranger to the road, having done a series of bicentennial segments from various states for the show this year. In fact, he says his travels for those segments led to his new on-the-road job. "A lot of people liked them, sponsors liked them and they got higher ratings for the show than during the rest of the week," he said of his bicentennial segments, all aired on Fridays. "I guess it turned out that a lot of people liked that better than they liked me sitting behind a studio desk.

"And it's also no secret that we're down a (ratings) point or two from the record highs we had a year ago ... with Barbara leaving, I guess there was concern they'd (NBC officials) have more ratings problems.

"So I guess they just seized this opportunity to make a structural overhaul in the show."

During consideration of that overhaul, did Hartz seek the travelling co-host job or did NBC News chief Richard C. Wald say changes had to be made and would he like the job?

"Well," chuckled the softspoken Oklahoman, "let's put it this way: It was presented as an offer I couldn't

He said when he got the offer, his main consideration was his family — a wife and three kids. He said after his bicentennial-story travels, they looked forward to seeing him home more often "and frankly, so did I.

injured. According to police, the 50-year-old

Cardozo, named to office after the March 24 military coup against Isabel Peron, had just gone up in the elevator of his fashionable apartment in the residential district of Palermo.

He opened a separate entry door from the elevator to his apartment and a blast killed him and wounded the others, police said.

Several officers of his personal guard were believed to be on duty at the time and it was not immediately explained

how anyone could have planted the bomb on the upper floor. Cardozo was the second federal police chief killed by a bomb in the past 21/2 years. Chief Alberto Villar was assassinated in November 1974 as he was starting out on a pleasure cruise with his wife on the river near Buenos Aires. At that time, the left-wing Peronist guerrillas "Montoneros" said they killed Villar. Last December, retired police chief Rafael Caceres Monie was shot down with his wife in the provincial city of Parana, capital of the province of Entre Rios.

Theatre names managing director

SABINA -Tony Mangia, of Columbus, has been selected to serve as managing director for the second summer season of the Sabina Barn Theatre in Sabina, Ohio.

Mangia, a 1970 Columbus Whitehall-Yearling High School graduate, and a 1974 recipient of a bachelor of arts degree from Otterbein College, will coordinate all phases of the summer stock company, including the direction of two major productions, "God's Favorite" and "Godspell."

Only in its second season, the Sabina Barn Theatre began under the direction and auspices of Otterbein College professor Fred J. Thayer and the United Methodist Church in the Southwest Ohio district. Thayer and his firstyear company renovated a barn-type structure into a small, intimate theatre aimed at bringing quality, meaningful drama to area residents.

This year, with the help of 16 competent and extremely talented actors and technicians, Mangia hopes to see the theatre and its appeal grow to new dimensions.

"Our job is to provide entertainment and a meaningful experience to our audiences. We hope to enable the audience to live their lives just a little better because of what happens in the theatrical experience. For centries, theatre was used as a tool to teach. Today, at Sabina, we too are holding

Mangia believes in his art, seeing it as perhaps the most meaningful of all the arts. He comes to Sabina from a pionner program for the performing arts in the Akron City School District. Mangia served in Akron last year as a teacher in a new and exciting career exploratory program for high school students desiring to enter the per-forming arts field. After Sabina this summer, he will return to develop the program for its second year.

The Sabina Barn Theatre, located on the Sabina Campgrounds, opens on June 25, 26, and 27 with Neil Simon's newest comedy hit, "God's Favorite" and is followed on July 2, 3 and 4 by William Gibson's famous story of Helen Keller, "The Miracle Worker." "Godspell" completes the theatre's offerings on July 9, 10 and 11. The musical, based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will have repeat performances on July 18, 24 and August 1 and 7. "God's Favorite" will repeat July 16 and 31, while "The Miracle Worker" will be staged again July 17, 23, 25 and 30 and August 6.

Special dinner-theatre performances will be offered Friday and Saturday nights with a smorgasbord buffet beginning at 6:30 p.m. and curtain at 8:15 p.m. Sunday matinees will start at

Gregory passes through Columbus on hunger walk

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dick Gregory has passed the half-way point on a 3,100-mile cross-country run from Los Angeles to New York meant to dramatize the problem of hunger in this country and the world.

Dressed in a sweat suit and backed by an introduction from Lt. Gov. Richard Celeste, Gregory predicted Thursday that "food riots" could break out if the government does not act to alleviate hunger.

"Now there's an actual problem of getting food on the table," he said. "I don't think this can happen much

The 44-year-old comedian turned social activist called on the national leadership to "say to the hungry poor, 'you won't starve.'

Thus far, his proposal to President Ford for a new independent cabinet post of Secretary of Food and Nutrition has drawn no response, he said.

"I think we should stop looking at food as a privilege," he told a Statehouse news conference, packed with his supporters and joggers who joined him for a few miles through Columbus. "Somewhere we must say we're not going to tolerate Sunger anymore.

Gregory said fundraising was not a major focus of his marathon jaunt, but described it rather as an effort to dramatize the "food crisis that exists in America today.

'We're not talking about the critical shortage of food as much as high prices of food," he said.

Ticks mailed to Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The FBI would not disclose the recipients of at least two letters containing supposedly dangerous ticks received in the Cincinnati area this week.

According to C. Edwin Enright, assistant agent in charge of the Cincinnati FBI office, the letters and ticks have been sent to Washington, D.C., for examination. He would not say Thursday to whom the letters were mailed, but did confirm the existence of more than one such letter.

Enright and officials at Procter & Gamble Co. would not comment on reports that one letter containing ticks was received at the Cincinnati-based consumer products company. On Tuesday, a letter bomb was delivered to the home of Edward Harness, chairman of the board at Procter & Gamble.

The assistant agent in charge said FBI Director Clarence Kelley would release a statement when the investigation is completed.

State park cabin fee increase set

COLUMBUS - Price increases for rental of state-operated cabins at Ohio's state parks will go into effect July 1, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Effective July 1

Fee increases were included in administrative rules adipted by the department's Division of Parks and Recreation following a public hearing in Columbus May 21.

Under the rules, the summer season cost of a deluxe housekeeping cabin from April 1 to Oct. 31 will be $155 a week or $35 a day effective July 1; and $165 a week or $37.50 a day effective Jan. 1 1977. Off season rates for deluxe cabins are lower than in-season rates.

Standard housekeeping cabins, which are open only April 1-Oct. 31, will rent for $117 a week or $26 a day effective July 1; and $130 a week or $27 a day effective Jan. 1, 1977. The rates to be in effect July 1 for state-operated cabins already are in effect for cabins operated for the Ohio Department of Natural Resources by Ohio Inns, Inc., at Burr Oak, Hueston Woods, Punderson, Salt Fork and Shawnee state parks.

Ralph Vanzant, chief of the division of Parks and Recreation, said an increase in the rental price of cabins placed in effect last year was the first increase since 1970.

"We're still trying to catch up with our costs of operation," he said.

A 25-cent, across-the-board increase for all camping fees will be effective Jan. 1, 1977. For example, the new nightly in-season rate for a Class A campsite with electricity will be $4.

Next year's nightly fee for use of camping facilities provided under the parks division's "rent-a-camp" program will be $8, including camping

Also to be increased next year are fees for state-owned boat docks and tieup stakes, privately-owned boat docks on state land, and other watercraftrelated facilities. For example, seasonal rental for a stat-owned boat

dock next year will increase to $85. The new administrative rules of the Division of Parks and Recreation also assure continued benefits for senior citizens and totally disabled veterans at Ohio's 63 state parks. Senior citizens receive discounts for particular services at state parks through the "Golden Buckeye Card" program of the Ohio Commission on Aging. Permanently and totally disabled veterans may camp in state parks without charge because of a recently-enacted state law.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes issued

executive orders in April authorizing immediate implementation of benefits for senior citizens and veterans so they would not have to wait for promulgation of administrative rules.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has published a revised edition of its "Lodge and Cabin Accommodations" brochure, listing the new cabin rates along with lodge room rates. A profile in courage

'Miracle woman' and 'monster' machine

By CINDI PEARCE

Record-Herald Staff Writer We all have our bouts with physical ailments and when we do, we are usually more than willing to impart the details of our aches and pains to any friend, relative or neighbor who is willing to listen (or, who is cornered into listening!) We curse and complain about an aching big toe or our per-sistent sinus headache in hopes that others will sympathize. Chronic complainers, as we all know, are a dime a dozen.

Most people are quite capable of making the proverbial "mountain out of a mole hill" when it comes to describing their latest physical af-fliction. On the other hand, there are those unique individuals who don't dwell on their illnesses no matter how truly devastating they might, in fact, be. These people, who have lived through the real hard-core diseases, the likes of which many of us have never witnessed (thankfully) would rather push thoughts of suffering into the recesses of their mind in contrast to those minor casualities who like to besiege others with the intracacies of their ailments.

Mrs. Letty Winn, 912 S. Fayette St., is one of the staunch survivors. She has been through it all and is still around to talk about it, which she does hesitantly when pressed to do so, sure that her ordeal is of no interest to others. The 61year-old Mrs. Winn is a profile in courage and her story might help others who are faced with the crisis she dealt with and will deal with until her dying day.

In 1973, Mrs. Winn was a normal, hard-working individual who had never been physically plagued with anything worse than the run-of-the-mill childhood diseases. Suddenly, soon after she thought she'd recovered from a throat virus, she began to swell. In no time at all, she had gained 46 pounds, going from her regular weight of 114 pounds to 160. She was rushed to Jewish Hospital, in Cincinnati, where they drained her lungs which had filled with fluid. Here it was discovered that her kidneys were not functioning, and consequently, were unable to rid Mrs. Winn of excess bodily fluids which were responsible for her sudden balloon-like appearance. She was transferred from Jewish Hospital to Christ Hospital in Cincinnati where a kidney machine was available.

Mrs. Winn, who, in the past, spent a good year of her life in several hospitals throughout Ohio, was constantly being uprooted and sent elsewhere because the doctors at the various hospitals were convinced that there was nothing they could do for her. They were resigned to her impending demise. Time and time again Paul Winn was warned that he would lose his wife within the next 72 hours. But, he

serve absolutely no purpose.
"When I entered Christ Hospital, I sort of left the world for a few months. I and I don't remember anything from that period," Mrs. Winn stated. She added that she didn't particularly like to think about that time. She was unconscious for three months but regained consciousness with her brain intact, which usually isn't the case after such a lengthy period of being comatose, which may well be why the medical people at Christ Hospital call her the "miracle woman".

Home since May of last year, Mrs. Winn recalled the doctors' and nurses' reactions when it appeared that she was going to get better. "They were so happy for me because none of them thought that I was going to come around. When I did regain consciousness they began telling me stories of how terribly I had treated them during my semi-comatose period. I would yell at them and anyone else who came into my room. They couldn't believe that I was the same person because I was so nice once I was feeling better. Being cruel isn't my nature, didn't know what I was doing when I was being mean and I told them that I didn't want to hear about it."

Mrs. Winn, who has a permanent catheter in her stomach, has undergone kidney-related surgery 15 times. "They fed me intravaneously but then the veins in my arms collapsed. They had to strip the arteries from my legs and put them into my arms." She explained

how the arteries from the left leg went into the right arm and vice versa. According to Mrs. Winn, the leg arteries are the only arteries that can be transferred elswhere in the body. "Eventually, the leg arteries placed in my arms collapsed and they put a bovine calf's arterie in my arm, but it too failed to function correctly." The calf's arterie is used in such cases because it is quite similar to the human arterie. "It came to a point when the doctors had to resort to other means of feeding me (through her stomach). I told them that I'd try to get along without the insertion of another calf's arterie because there was no assurance that this second attempt would work.' When it became apparent that Mrs. Winn would recover sufficiently to go home, the doctors suggested that she learn how to use the peritineal machine, a kidney machine, so that she could take it home with her, but she told them, "Lord, I could never learn to run that thing! I can't remember very well any more." The doctors reprimanded her saying, "You are lucky to have a brain at all considering that you layed unconscious for three months.

Mrs. Winn has spent the past year traveling to Cincinnati every other day for her treatments which consisted of 10 hours attached to the kidney machine plus the drive to and from. This means of treatment was too demanding, so Mrs. Winn learned to operate the complex machine which if formidable looking. Only two kidney patients from Christ Hospital have mastered the peritineal machine: Mrs. Winn, and a boy from West Virginia.

"When I agreed to learn how to run the machine, they put me on a three week self-run at the hospital. I panicked. No one was around. It was just me and that machine. It was quite frieghtening, but I learned how to use

Mrs. Winn has had the machine in her home for the past month and she attaches herself to it every other night for a 10-hour period. She says that the best day of her life was when the machine was delivered to her house and she knew that she wouldn't have to make the trip to Cincinnati anymore. "I call the machine the 'monster' but it's my

She explained the mechanism which is relatively hard for the medical lay-person to comprehend. "The machine goes into inflow and pumps fluid into my body, they there's a staying period of 16 minutes in which the fluid remains in my body. Then the machine goes into outflow and the fluid drains for 10 minutes. This process is repeated continously over a 10-hour time span."

Before using the peritineal machine, Mrs. Winn was required to lie flat on her back for 40 hours at a time while bottles of dextrose and various medicines were fed into her catheter. It took one hour for each of the 40 bottles to drain. Considering the inconvenience of this method, Mrs. Winn is quite pleased with the peritineal procedure. Being dependent on this machine is an inconvenience and my salvation at the same time.

Saying that she will never be completely well, Mrs. Winn said that she'd gained back three pounds since coming home last May, at which time she weighed 98 pounds. Mrs. Winn lost her accumulated weight in "no time at all" but she wouldn't recommend her means for weight loss as a method for

In remarkable good spirits, Mrs. Winn said that she is capable of doing most of her housework and laundry. She gets out in the car and does the shopping, but added that her husband, who is an auctioneer, does what ever she is unable to do. "I'm tired most of the time, but other than that, I feel okay. I meet people on the street and they tell me that I look good and then others, who I've known all of my life, don't even recognize me. I don't think I look any different except for a few more wrinkles and gray hairs."
Her diet is limited. She can't have

Historic Chillicothe-Bainbridge area

Lets tour Ohio series

Ashville (19), which is just east of U.S. 23, north of Circleville, has for 47 years focused on the fourth day of July for its all-out festival.

This year's celebration has been designated as the official bicentennial event of the Ohio Festivals and Events Association. This will be a jubilant occasion! The two-day festival will feature a mammoth fish fry, beauty pageants, displays and fireworks on both nights. The 5th will be highlighted by the 11 a.m. parade and continuous free entertainment, including a contest of barbershop quartets.

While you're in the area, if you are a camper, you may want to stay at the beautiful A.W. Marion State Park (13), and do some fishing and boating, or visit Logan Elm (12), which is five miles south of Circleville, east of U.S. 23 on Ohio 361, and picnic there at the site of the legendary speech of Chief Logan in 1774. Another attraction just west of Circleville, one mile south of U.S. 22 is the Cicleville Canal (11). This is a five-mile stretch of the Ohio-Erie Canal and you can get in some great fishing and hiking.

South on U.S. 23 or Ohio 104 is Chillicothe. Just outside the city on Ohio 104 is the Mound City Group National Monument (17),. Twentythree perhistoric mounds lie within the low embankment. This 67-acre tract is a restoration of one of the finest examples of Hopewell Culture, who inhabited the Scioto Valley from about 300 B.C. to 600 A.D. A visitor center contains offices, exhibits and public facilities. An observation deck provides an outstanding view of the area, as well as a recorded description and history. The monument is open daily during daylight hours,. The visitor center is open June 1 thru Labor Day, daily 8-8. The rest of the year it is open 8-5; closed Jan. 1 and Dec. 25.

Adena (1), at the western end of Allen Ave. off Ohio 104, is the stone mansion, now a state memorial, built in 1806-1807 for Thomas Worthington, the sixth

governor of Ohio. The mansion was designed by Benjamin Latrobe, who directed the construction of the nation's capitol. Overlook provides a breathtaking view of the hills reproduced on the Great Seal of Ohio. There is a charge for admission. Adena is open 10-5, Tuesday through Sunday, April through October. It is closed on major holidays.

The Chillicothe Gazatte (2), at 50 W. Main St. is the oldest continuously published newspaper west of the Alleghenies. Housed in a replica of Ohio's first capital building, it is open to visitors Monday through Friday, 8:30-5 and Saturday until noon. It is closed on major holidays.

The Ross County Historical Society Museum (3), at 45 W. Fifth St. features exhibits of pioneer crafts, firearms, furniture, toys and costumes. There is also the Indian room and Ohio's Constitution Table. Open February through October, Thursday through Tuesday, 1-5. There is an admission charge.

In the evening, just a little northeast of Chillicothe, at Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheatre (4), experience history first hand in the spectacular outdoor drama "Tecumseh", the reliving of the Battle of Tippicanoe. Begins at 8:45 p.m. nightly except Sunday, June 21 to Sept. 4.

Just south of Chillicothe is Scioto Trail State Park (5), one of the three state parks in the area. One particular attraction of the park is that scuba is permitted. The other parks are Pike, south of Bainbridge, and Rocky Fork, near Hillsboro. Each has a character all its own and offers a wide variety of outdoor activities.

Seip Mount State Memorial (9) contains the great central mound of the Seip complex, which originally consisted of several mounds and a series of earthen embankments. There is a pavilion displaying graphic material, related to the mound complex. Picnic facilities are also available.

The Dental Museum (6) which is was who the country's first dental school operating from 1826-1831. On display are dental instruments and equipment used during pioneering days of dental surgery. Open April 15 to Nov. 1, Friday through Wednesday, 10-5. No charge.

Southwest of Bainbridge, off Ohio 41 is Fort Hill State Memoial (7), the prehistoric earthworks believed to have been built by the Hopewell Indians. A museum with displays on geology, plant and animal life and on the Hopewell Indians, is open 9:30-5 Tuesday through Sunday, March to December. Admission charge.

Paint Valley Skyline Drives (8), starting in Bainbridge, are four loop routes, varying from nine to 38 miles that travel from the valleys to the summits of Ohio's most spectacular hills. This is a trip you'll want to plan again in the fall for Bainbridge's "Fall Festival of the Leaves" when Paint Valley's magnificent display is further enhanced by the celebration, old time crafts and free entertainment. This year's festival will be held Oct. 14-17.

No. 14 on the map is the new Paint Creek Lake with its beautiful outdoor facilities.

West of Bainbridge and a mile south of U.S. 50, is Seven Caves (10). Each cavern is electrically illuminated and there are three separate foot trails in the 100-acre park. Open daily 8-6:30, May 24 to Sept. 1. Admission charge. Open 8-5, Mar. 15-May 23, and Sept. 2-

In Hillsboro (18) is Ayers Drug Store, which is the oldest drug store east of the Alleghenies, in continuous operation since 1808; the oldest court house building in the state, dating from 1834; and Highland House, which was used as a tavern and hotel for many years, and now has been restored by the Highland County Historical Society and contains 14 rooms of period furnishings.

new electrical-electronics The engineering program was given final approval by the Ohio Board of Regents

According to Tom Cunningham, instructor in engineering technology at Southern State College, the major difference between the electarical and the electronics programs is that electrical engineering deals with heavy machinery and electronics deals with lightweight machinery.

In addition to technical courses, students also take liberal arts courses to provide a general theoretical background for their education.

Because many students are employed full-time and go to school parttime, a cooperative experience is not included in the program. "Fewer than one in 10 students in my evening classes are fresh out of high school," said Cunningham.

Technical education provides the students with more general and theoretical training than on-the-job experience, Cunningham said. He noted that on-the-job trainees are usually taught specialized skills that fit the needs of the company where they

"We can provide more hands-on experience with a wider variety of things and we can concentrate it in a shorter period of time," said Cunningham.

Cunningham is optimistic about job opportunities in the electricalelectronics engineering field. The outlook "is good for someone who is skilled," he said.

The electrical and electronics engineering areas lead to the associate in applied science degree. Classes meet on both the north and south campuses, although there is more of a demand for classes on the north campus at this

Although the electrical-electronics engineering technology program is complete in itself, credits earned are transferable to other institutions. Cunningham suggested that a student wishing to transfer credits choose his or her four-year college before beginning the engineering program at Southern State College. The Southern State course of study can then be designed to fit the student's needs as well as meet the requirements of the four-year college.

Hays to quit committee position

By PEGGY SIMPSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wayne Hays, whose relationship with Elizabeth Ray touched off the Capitol Hill payroll-sex scandal, will resign in the next several days as chairman of tahe House Administration Committee, according to sources close to the Democratic

Hays also has indicated to colleagues that he will soon announce plans not to run for re-election in November, the sources said Thursday night.

Hays is recovering in an Ohio hospital after taking an overdose of sleeping pills.

Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala,

Republican on Administration Committee, said Hays' decision will be made known in a letter and that the Ohio Democrat will cite reasons of health for leaving the committee post

Hays previously stepped down as chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, which channels campaign funds to candidates.

Rep. Frank Thompson, DN.J., the Administration Committee's senior Democrat behind Hays, was said to be the leading choice to succeed him as chairman.

It was Hays' relationship with former committee staffer Miss Ray that started a series of allegations about sex in Capitol Hill offices.

Miss Ray last month told the news media that she was paid $14,000 a year to do nothing but supply sex to Hays. She said she couldn't type, take dictation or even answer the telephone.

Hays at first denied any relations with Miss Ray but later took the House floor to acknowledge that he had a 'personal relationship" with her. Hays insisted she was a skilled office worker and that the taxpayers got their money's worth.

Hays, now finishing his 14th two-year term in Congress, went on to win the Democratic primary in his eastern Ohio district earlier this month and now faces a Republican and an independent in the November election.

Meanwhile, District of Columbia officials said they are reconsidering a policy that exempts members of from arrest Congress misdemeanors. The reassessment was prompted by published reports that Rep. Joe Waggonner, D-La., was detained earlier this year after soliciting a policewoman disguised as a postitute. Soliciting a prostitute misdemeanor punishable by a $250 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

Waggonner said, however, that police were satisfied with his account of the incident and let him go. His story differed from that of police.

Police Chief Maurice J. Cullinane confirmed that Waggonner was detained and then released. He explained that under department policy members of Congress are immune from arrest in all misdemeanor cases. Waggonner told reporters that he

In another incident, Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, was arrested last weekend in Salt Lake City for allegedly soliciting undercover policewomen posing as prostitutes.

Taxes fund 21 Hays' London trips

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Wayne L. Hays and a long-time Ohio friend have made 21 trips to London at taxpayer expense during the past nine years, the Washington Post reported Thursday.

The newspaper quoted Hays as acknowledging that he got Orlan C. Ralston his position as head of the State Department's foreign buildings office in 1965. Ralston had been manager of Howell's General Store in Flushing, Ohio, where Hays rented congressional office space, the Post said.

"I make a lot of these trips. That's our business," Ralston told the Post. His office administers U.S. embassy housekeeping and budgetary affairs abroad.

The newspaper said travel records show that Hays and Ralston frequently have gone on to other European capitals, but each of the 21 trips included a two-to five-day stop in London. The records show that Ralston has made only four trips abroad in the past nine years unaccompanied by Hays.

Hays made the trips as chairman of the House international operations subcommittee, which oversees the State Department budget, and as a member of the North Atlantic Assembly, a NATO parliamentary group.

NBA-ABA merger settled

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — The Chicago Bulls and the Atlanta Hawks, the National Basketball Association's worst teams last season, figured to reap the bigget benefits with the addition of four American Basketball Association clubs to the NBA for the

The Bulls and Hawks will have the Nos. 1 and 2 picks, respectively, in a special dispersement draft of players from the two ABA franchises - Kentucky and Utah - which were not added to the NBA Thursday, plus players remaining from the Virginia franchise which folded following the 1975-76 season.

Most likely the Bulls, who have been struggling for several years without a high-scoring center, will select 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, who led Kentucky to the ABA championship in 1975. The Hawks, also lacking a good big man, would then take 6-11 Moses Malone, who stepped right into the pros from Petersburg, Va., High School in 1974 and was an immediate sensation.

The order of selection was decided upon after the announcement of the historic merger, which will result in the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs becoming a part of the NBA next sesason, bringing the league's membership to 22. The teams will select in the inverse order of their records for last season. Following Chicago and Atlanta will be Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York Nets, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

It will be another opportunity for the poorer to get rich, and the for the Bulls and Hawks it could not have come at a more opportune time. Chicago finished last season with a 24-58 record and Atlanta was 29-53.

The Bulls began rebuilding last week when they chose 6-7 forward Scott May of Indiana, the College Player of the Year, on the first round of the NBA

The Hawks were extremely active on the trading market as the season ended, swinging two major deals. In one transaction they obtained center-forward Joe C. Meriweather and guard Gus Bailey from the Houston Rockets and in the other they acquired guard Ken Charles and forward Dick Gibbs from the Buffalo Braves for guard Tom Van Arsdale.

The date of the dispersal draft was not set but other players expected to be among the top picks are Marvin Barnes, Ron Boone, Maurice Lucas and Bird Averitt.

Perhaps the two biggest losers in the the agreement will be Los Angeles and New Orleams. Both had forfieted their first-round draft choices in 1977 in a recent supplemental draft of underclassmen who have signed by the the ABA this season but were not chosen by NBA clubs. In that draft, the Lakers took Mark Olberding, a strong rebounder who now will remain with San Antonio, and the Jazz chose the highly prized Malone.

That draft was voided by the agreement between the leagues.

Other major points of the agreement included:

-Each of the four new teams will pay the NBA $3.2 million, with $1 million due by July 1 and the remaining $2.2 million due by Sept 15.

-The new teams will not share in TV revenue for four years, will not vote on division alignment for next season and will not vote on a resolution on gate

sharing for two years. —All ABA players selected in the despersal draft will have their current contracts honored by NBA teams. —Players not chosen will have thier contracts paid by the ABA.

The New York Nets will have to pay the NBA's New York Knicks a territorial indemnity over 20 years. That indemnity was not announced, but was estimated at $6 million including interst. the scenes behind Much maneuvering went into the agreement on which both leagues have been working feverishly in recent weeks and really hammered away at during the NBA's three-day summer meeting in this Cape Cod resort community. "There was a lot of ebb and flow, a lot of give and take," said a weary but satisfied Larry O'Brien, commissioner of the NBA. "What was decided upon was not perfection, but in something like this both sides had to yield a little and that's what happened in this case."

O'Brien said he felt all four new teams were qualified to join the NBA. 'Our checkout on them was fully intensive," he explained.

While those four teams checked out well, Kentucky and Utah were not accepted because they failed to meet all proper requirements, such as solid financial backing and future potential. However, both teams will be remunerated. Kentucky will receive $3 million from the departing ABA clubs, while the payment to Utah has not been settled.

'We wanted all six teams to go in, but it proved a big stumbling block to the NBA," said ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, who added that his future plans were uncertain beyond the next three or four months, when he hopes to complete all of the ABA's housekeeping.

The agreement still has to be approved by the ABA Players Association and agreed upon by Judge Robert Carter of Southern District Court in New York.

The players union's acceptance is expected to be a mere formality, because its counsel, Prentiss Yancey, said he felt the package was one he could recommend for passage to the owner Charles O. Finley, lashing out at a baseball system that has "no stability and no permanence," said he had no alternative but to sell three of his star ballplayers because he couldn't make a trade for them.

Finley appeared with representatives of the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and player union head Marvin Miller at a hearing with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday, and said the current system of playermanagement behavior is "wrecking the sport."

In a matter of hours Tuesday, Finley sold Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the then sent left-hander Vida Blue to the

NEW YORK (AP) - Oakland A's Yankees for $1.5 million after signing the pitcher to a three-year contract. Kuhn, prohibiting the purchased players from reporting to their new clubs, had ordered the hearing because of questions that arose in his mind over Finley's clearance sale.

"The issue is whether the assignment of the three contracts is appropriate or not under the circumstances. That's the issue I have to wrestle with," said Kuhn. "I have to consider these transactions in the best interest of baseball. I have the inherent power to do what I feel is in the best interest of baseball.

His decision regarding Finley's Boston Red Sox for $1 million each, action was expected some time today. The maverick A's owner had the explanation of his moves well prepared. "Clubs don't want unsigned ballplayers," he said after Thursday's hearing, referring to the fact that the three athletes sold were among seven Oakland players who had not signed contracts for the current season. "I wouldn't want one either. It was only the Red Sox and Yankees who said, 'We'll take these ballplayers, even if

Reds face opponets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) Cincinnati Reds will be back at full strength tonight as they embark on what may be their toughest week of the season.

The Reds begin a three-game series here against the Eastern Division leading Philadelphia Phillies, return home Monday for two games with archrival Los Angeles, then host the Phillies again for two more. The next day off for the world champions isn't until July 1.

"The Philadelphia series probably is the more important," said second baseman Joe Morgan. "They're being hailed as the super team and it's up to us to establish who's best.'

In the only series between the clubs so far this year, the Phillies took two out of three in Philadelphia.

"We want them to know that come playoff time we can beat them," Morgan added. "They can build teams up all they want. No one is better than

The Phillies and Dodgers will be greeted by the best the Reds have to offer. Johnny Bench, who missed several stretches this year with minor injuries, has rested for two days and will play. Ken Griffey, who hurt his hand in the Chicago series just concluded, also will be back in action.

In five games against the Phillies, who currently sport the best won lost record in the major leagues, Gary Nolan and Don Gullett each will pitch twice. Jack Billingham is scheduled to open the series tonight against Jim

I'm still in a slump," Kingman insisted despite a 14th-inning home run that led the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kingman's homer was his 23rd of the season, but only his first at home since May 28. He prefers hitting on the road, obviously. "I feel less pressure on the road," said Kingman, who hit his last seven shots away from Shea Stadium. "These last few days, I've been wishing we'd been on the road." Despite leading the major leagues in home runs and despite a healthy RBI figure of 50, Kingman is not happy with his season. He had hoped for more consistency than just a .240 batting average, as well as fewer strikeouts. "I have a good day and then I have a bad day," Kingman said. "I would

Swan pitched the first 10 innings for New York, allowing only three base runners on three singles, the total of Dodger hits for the evening. He struck out eight. Don Sutton, the Los Angeles Kingman either strikes out or hits it starter, worked the first nine innings,

Only young Reid wasn't distressed and he seemed uncomfortable - if secretly happy — sitting up there three shots ahead of five toughened pros — Masters champion Ray Floyd, Al Geiberger, Rod Funseth, Rik Massengale and John Mahaffey, all tied at even par 70 — with the rest of the 149-man field strung out all the way to where the late Bob Jones is legend, was buzzing with complaints from the players by the time young Reid got ready to tee off in the late afternoon fourth from last of the threesomes.

Six years of testing by Purdue University indicates 5 per cent to 10 per cent increase in yield can be achieved with this growth stimulant, when applied at the right time. go together.

The series, although it is now two decades old, still enjoys a tremendous popularity in its umpty-umpth time around, and seems destined to endure as long as the octogenarian Groucho has.

In his book, Groucho reveals, with the help of many members of the show's production staff, how the show came to be, and theorizes on why it succeeded. Included too is repartee with contestants from some of the show's more memorable segments, a funny exchange between Groucho and Broadway's Rodgers and Hammerstein, and several pages of nostalgic photographs.

An appendix allows readers to test their knowledge on actual questions used in the quiz, such as "Name this popular song."

The book will be required reading for Groucho fans and for students and fans of early television, and an entertaining companion for a lazy summer afternoon. Ron Berthel

Recess postpones Rhodes' attempt to oust Stebbins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Senate Judiciary Committee has recessed until July 6 its hearings on a request by Gov. James A. Rhodes to remove Gregory J. Stebbins from the Ohio Industrial Commission.

Testimony started Thursday but dealt generally with procedural matters.

Rhodes asked the Senate to use its statutory authority to dismiss Stebbins after a federal court earlier this year blocked his efforts to fire him under malfeasance and misfeasance laws.

The governor has charged that the former commission chairman, named by former Democrat Gov. John J. Gilligan, benefitted financially two years ago after a $20,000 injured worker's award was used to purchase a house in which Stebbins shared ownership.

Stebbins was replaced as chairman after Rhodes became governor in early 1975 but remained as a member of the three-member commission. He and his attorneys are fighting the dismissal effort, denying the real estate charge and several other lesser allegations Rhodes sent the committee. The committee didn't get to the real estate deal Thursday.

Most of testimony dealt with procedures used by the commission in the handling of injured workers' claims some of which involved Stebbins' actions called into question by Rhodes.

Earlier in the day, Stebbins' lawyers went into Franklin County Common Pleas Court and requested a temporary vestigated the claim but took no action injunction to prohibit hearings before against Stebbins the judiciary committee. They said the matter should be pursued by the full

Senate, not just one of its committees.

Judge Paul W. Martin declined to hear the injunction request, citing procedural reasons and saying Rhodes and committee members named in the injunction request had not been given prior notice. The Senate hearing got under way a short time later.

Rhodes' attorneys Although presented a list of 10 charges against the former chairman, they said the major allegation involved the awarding of a $20,000 lump sum settlement to a disabled client who used the money in a real estate transaction that yielded Stebbins about $6,000.

The disputed claim was filed by Mitchell M. Hizer of Columbus in November 1973. It stated that $18,000 of the $20,000 lump sum would be used to buy a home in Columbus.

Stebbins had sold the same house earlier that year to the Pickwick Holding Co. but was waiting for a final payment which was contingent on the house being resold, Rhodes has charged. Stebbins conceded he received a $6,000 payment from the holding company in 1974 as the balance still due him on the house

He added however, that at the time the commission acted on Hizer's claim, he no longer held title to the property and saw nothing wrong in voting on the

bananas or other fruits that contain potassium because the chemical is poisonous to her system since her kidney's don't function. She can only have two glasses of liquid a day, but is not allowed to drink her favorite fruit drinks, which are grapefruit and orange juice, because they too contain potassium. "If I stay at my two glass quota, then I'll only gain two or three pounds a day, but if I exceed this limit, I can gain as much as six or seven pounds in a day. Once I get on the machine it eliminates this excess fluid in my body," Mrs. Winn said.

Passions such as weiners and sauerkraut and fried potatoes are forbidden by her female doctor at Christ Hospital, whom Mrs. Winn described as a "great person and wonderful kidney doctor."

Since her illness, the heat, which she loved before, has began to take its toll. Before her kidney failure, Mrs. Winn said that she loved hot weather. "The hotter the better." During previous summers she said that she was able to work best when it was hot, but now, when the heat creeps in the settles, she said that she just sits and wilts. "Last winter, when I was going to Cincinnati for my treatments, whenever I would walk out in the crisp winter air, I would inhale and think, "oh, what beautiful

A strong faith in God helped her through her ordeal. "At one time I was praying to die and to live at the same time, I didn't know which one I wanted most," Mrs. Winn said revealing the confusion she underwent. "But I know that I didn't make it through on my own. I had alot of help."

Her husband and her friends aided her tremendously. "My husband was encouraging when I was down and out and so were the doctors and nurses," who took to calling Mrs. Winn, "Letty Babe'

Her advice to anyone who suspects that they have kidney troubles is to see a doctor immediately. "Don't neglect your kidneys! You don't think much about them ordinarily, but when something goes wrong with them, believe me, you think about them!"

Mrs. Winn has two companions who are obviously dear to her, and whom she feared she would never see again. They are two dogs, Ginger, the "independent one", who is half scottie and half dachshund, and is funny, but cute, looking to say the least with her scottie features and weiner dog torso. The other pooch is a Manchester named Tammy, the "pushy one", who according to Mrs. Winn, only bites men, never women. "My husband said that these two dogs were his pals while I was sick and in the hospital. It would have been difficult for him to get through it all without the company of Ginger and Tammy." Mrs. Winn snuggled with her two pooches, who were allowed to sit in the living room during the interview, which was apparently a treat for them. She calls the two female dogs "old grannies" because neither one of them has ever had a litter of pups. "The dogs have been happy since I came home.

A lifetime dependent on the "monster", her kidney machine, is something that Mrs. Winn accepts. "I've had a good life and I was always a hard worker. The worst thing about my illness is that I'm no longer able to work like I did before chase through the back streets of Jeffersonville on Friday.

According to Fayette County sheriff's deputies, a pickup truck driven by John R. Glasscock, 27, of Leffersonville, had reported by London in Jeffersonville, had reportedly landed in a ditch along Ohio 41-N, just north of Miami Trace High School during the early hours of Friday.

Upon arrival at the scene, sheriff's deputies found that the pickup truck had left the accident scene. Deputies continued onward to I-71, where they discovered a truck matching the description of the one being sought.

The pickup truck failed to pull over at the sound of the cruiser's siren, and was pursued through the village limits of Jeffersonville. After a chase through the back streets of Jeffersonville, Glasscock was apprehended, had to be physically taken to the sheriff's cruiser, and reportedly used abusive language throughout his apprehension.
